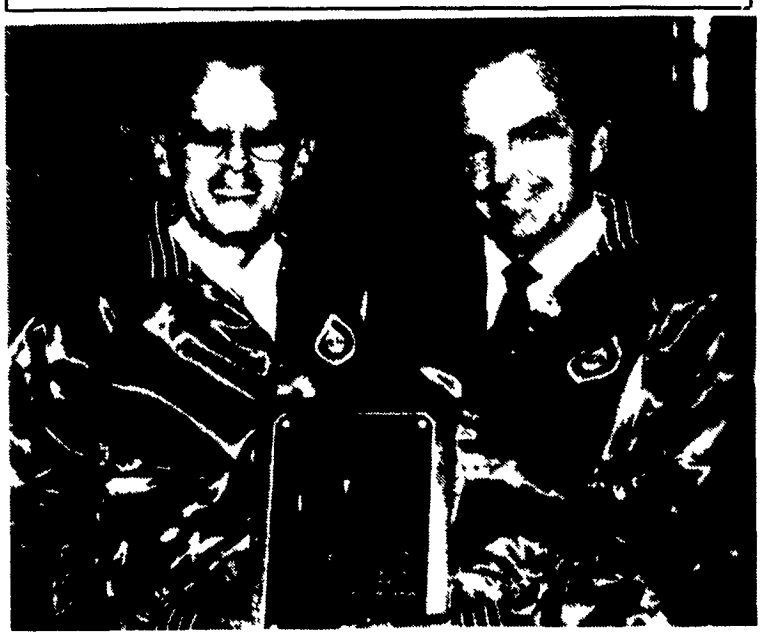
Lancaster Farming 35 This Week

On November 4, 1955, the first issue of a new county-wide farm newspaper appeared in rural mailboxes. Lancaster Farming took its place in the lives of local farmers with news, features, markets columns, and advertising of interest to farmers and agri-business. Many things about farming have changed over the years. But on the paper's 35th birthday one thing has not changed. Lancaster Farming still appears in rural mailboxes — nearly 50,000 of them. And the theme from week to week is still — FARMING.



Grover B. Simpson, left, was surprised when Richard Norton, MAMMA's general manager, right, presented a plaque in recognition of Simpson's 32 years of service to dairy farmers. Commonly referred to as Mr. American Dairy Association, Simpson is known for his dedication, tenacity, and wisdom in developing promotional programs for dairy products.

Farm City Programs Build Understanding

City Man Sees Dairy Farm

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.)—David and Robert Bomberger didn't get much farming done Thursday because they were continuously interrupted by TV crews and other media types like this reporter. But they were willing to give up a day harvesting soybeans to bring the farm and city a little closer together.

This was the day Rick Kopecky, director of the private industry council of the Susquehanna

FONTANA (Lebanon Co.) — Farm-City Week 1990 is officially from Nov. 15 to Nov. 25, but starting this week, several programs are already getting underway in an effort to bring together rural and urban Pennsylvanians.

In addition to the early starts and varied programs throughout the state, this year's activities include several new twists. The most changed is the state kick-off program.

MAMMA Celebrates 45 Years Of Operation Teamwork

HUNT VALLEY, MD — It takes teamwork to produce, advertise and sell milk. For 45 years Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Association has successfully used operation teamwork to target 15 million people.

On Monday, the MAMMA team, held their annual meeting at the Hunt Valley Inn near Baltimore.

Mike Schmidt and Cal Ripken, baseball celebrities, were there, signing baseballs and drinking milk. Cynthia Kereluk, the dairy industry's fitness expert, demonstrated the no workout-workout soon to be introduced to the TV audience. Dairy princesses from Maryland, Virginia, and Pennsylvania told of their combined interest in promoting dairy products. Dairy Council, United Dairy Industry Association, and the National Promotion and Research Board reported on past and future efforts to promote milk.

Richard Norton, MAMMA's manager, flashed slides of the dairy industry's history and progress. He capped the presentation by unveiling 1991 plans for dairy promotion.

In a surprise move, Norton presented a plaque to Grover B. Simpson, the man who is commonly referred to as Mr. American Dairy Association, for his 32 years of service to the dairy industry.

All participants at the event were robed in red "REAL" seal jackets to illustrate the operation teamwork that synchronizes so efficiently to advertise dairy products.

Washington D.C. Dairy Council

Jeanne Clark, executive director, reported that the Council works closely with nurses, schools, and dental professionals. The council developed a fat budgeting program to help consumers manage the fat in their diets.

Through print and broadcast media, Dairy Council encourages balanced nutrition for all age groups.

Philadelphia Dairy Council

Jan Stanton said 1990 marked the 70 years of Dairy Council's service in nutrition education. She noted the innovative activities the Council has provided, but said, "We must realize that it is sometimes dangerous to have a success-

OPINION

More Pills To Swallow

The Army Corps of Engineers last week notified its field offices that most cropland will not be subject to Section 404 of the Clean Water Act. This will free thousands of acres of agricultural land in most states from the restrictive wetlands permit process. That's a step in the right direction.

The ruling applies to acres that are now in agricultural crop production, most notably "prior converted cropland," and states that the cropping activity is the "normal circumstances" of those areas. The clarification of "normal circumstances" was addressed in a regulatory guidance letter issued to Corps field offices. It said the agency should now focus its efforts toward regulation of aquatic resources.

"This ruling by the Corps of Engineers represents a significant victory for Farm Bureau and farmers and ranchers nationwide whose lands have been unfairly burdened with federal restrictions," said American Farm Bureau Federation President Dean Klechner.

We agree. But since Section 404 is only part of the wetlands problem that hangs over the agriculture community, more legislative and adminstrative solutions must be forged. Top pirority must be given to address the definition of wetlands. President Bush has pledged to carry out a "no net loss" wetlands policy and has set up a task force to determine what constitutes a wet land. Hopefully, the needs of farmers and the food production industry will be considered by this task force.

Meanwhile, we are deeply concerned about reports that farmers have been put in jail and have been assessed large fines for cleaning up their farms. And since wetlands are controlled by at least four different government agencies, all with different agendas, the farmer can never really know if a law has been broken or not.

So to have cropland freed from the Clean Water Act is a big relief. But farmers have a lot more pills to swallow before the wetlands issue is resolved.

NOW IS THE TIME

To Exercise Dairy Cows

I know that many of our dairy farmers keep their milking cows confined to the stall barns much of the time. This is easy to do when you are short of labor during the winter months. In order to have a healthy herd, the cows should be allowed outside to exercise daily unless severe weather conditions exist. The exercise will not only keep their feet and legs in better condition, but will permit the cows in heat to be detected; this is often a problem when cows are kept confined too much of the time.

If the herd is turned out for 15 to 30 minutes each day, the time involved will be very worthwhile. You'll find very few days when the weather will interfere.

To Manage Feeding Programs

Fall is a time of year when many changes are apt to be made to feeding programs. According to Glenn Shirk, Extension Dairy Agent, these changes could consist of: (1) Feeding new forages produced during this year's growing season. (2) Feeding silages that have undergone incomplete or abnormal fermentations. (3) Using recently harvested feeds that are temporarily higher in moisture content, and (4) switching from a grazing program to a barn feeding program.

These changes can have adverse effects on cattle. To help avoid costly herd problems, anticipate changes in feeds and feed quality. Have forages analyzed, and formulate rations accordingly. Make changes in feeding programs gradually and give cattle ample time to adjust.

To Check Fire Extinguishers

This is the time of year that our barns and other buildings are filled to capacity with hay, straw, grain, tobacco and machinery. We want to make certain that fire extinguishers are mounted in each building, including your home.

The first step is to have the extinguisher; the second step is to be sure they are in good working condition; the third step is to be sure that all members of the work force and family know where they are and how to operate them. In many cases a good fire extinguisher can help control a fire until the fire company arrives. And finally, be sure they are checked and filled with the proper chemical.

To Be Aware Of Lawn Problems

A number of people have called about small holes all over their lawns. The holes are 3-5 inches deep and 2-3 inches wide and are found scattered throughout the lawn. These holes are the work of a skunk looking for grubs in the soil. Skunks do most of their feeding at night so you rarely see what is causing the damage. There is little you can do now, except fill in the holes with loose soil and sift a little grass seed on it. As the weather continues to get colder the grubs will move deep into the soil and insecticides will have no effect. Mark your calendar to do something about it next spring.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

LOST OPPORTUNITY

Background Scripture: 2 Kings 22.

Devotional Reading: Psalms 119.

Years ago one Sunday morning I was explaining to a church school class that when it comes to the grace of God, it is never too late to repent and receive God's forgiveness. One man in the class said, "If that's so, I think I know how to beat the system!" He was jesting, of course, but at the same time be was pointing to what seemed to be a flaw in the system. "Why don't I wait until I'm dying and then repent? That way I can live the way I want to until then and still be assured of salvation!"

How would you have answered him? Was he right? Is there a "flaw in the system"?

What I said to him was that the flaw was more apparent than real, for part of the value of receiving God's grace is, not only that it brings us eternal life after death, but that it makes real life possible before death. The power of God's grace not only affects our lives in the hereafter, but also in the here-and-now. The person who waits until they are on their deathbed will receive God's grace if their repentance is sincere, but they will have already lost out on the privilege of living by that grace right now.

WHAT MIGHT HAVE BEEN

Somewhere I read the testimony of a British literary figure who became a Christian as he lay dying. "Damnation!" he is recorded as having exclaimed, "to think I could have had all this years and years ago!" His soul was saved for eternity, but he had lost some grand opportunities during his earthly life.

That's what happened to King Josiah and the people of Judah when the scroll of the law was rediscovered in the temple by Hilkiah the high priest. When the scroll was brought to King Josiah and he read the ancient laws of Israel, he felt a profound sorrow for all the years that his people had lived in ignorance of it. Now that he could read the law, he was suddenly aware of how evil that life had been. So he expressed his sorrow and repentance in the traditional way: "he rent his clothes." Tearing off one's garments was an ancient expression of shame and sorrow.

INQUIRE OF THE LORD

Josiah, because of his sincere contribution and dedication to the Lord was exempted from the ruin to follow. But not that nation. Although God accepted their repentance, their sinful ways of so many years brought consequences which forgiveness would not erase. Under Josiah the future of Judah might be secure, but it was the past that they had lost.

The Natural Choice

We use Rumi-Cult 40 because it's a natural product. Our cows are much healthier, they make better use of their feed, and don't have the digestive problems we had with other feeding programs. We are very pleased with the increase in milk production and lower vet bills.

Doebler's has your number

WE MATCH HYBRIDS TO YOUR NEEDS

by Bill Camerer

I'm Bill Camerer, Doebler's research director with two loads of 61X seed corn for dryer. We pick early to protect seed from frost damage.

No doubt the 10 XP single crosses are Doebler's glamor corns. Top production. Healthy. Super standup.

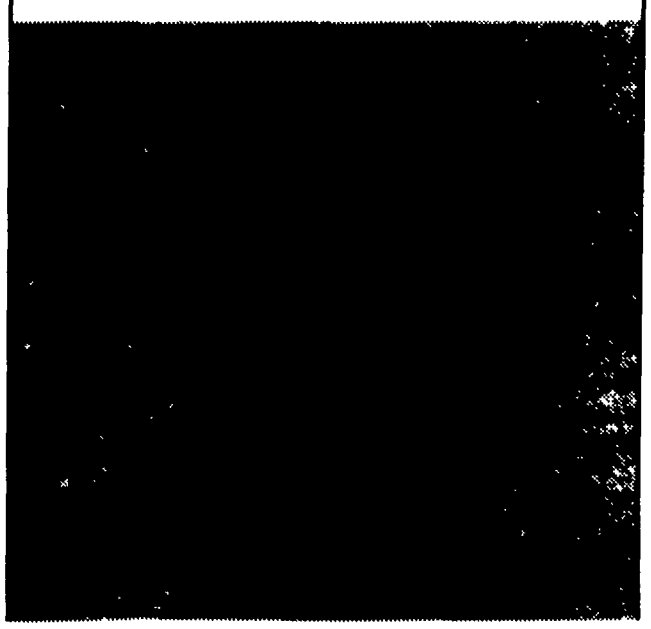
But as the guy who helped develop them, I want to make a case for our other 23 hybrids. They have earned their place on Eastern farms, too. And for good reason.

Like Doebler's 944-three way. A big, rank silage corn, it took the gold in our full season trials last year. And in all categories — tonnage, TDN and protein.

And don't overlook such old favorites as 78XA, 67X and 370A-3 way. They perform surprisingly well on thin soils. Or where fertility is on the low side.

Then there are hybrids like 75X that produce very respectable yields of grain or silage under almost any condition.

Taylor Doebler and I came up with five management scenarios the other day. Then rated our hybrids accordingly. Something to think about when buying corn.



Picking the right hybrids

These are our best judgement calls based on Doebler research and farmer observations.

Corn silage — These hybrids deliver big tons, high quality. 944-3 (125 days), 84XP (118 days), 75XMod (113 days), 70X-C (112 days), 650-3 (100 days), 59X (98 days), 370A-3 (85 days).

Low fertility, thin soils — Crop potential of these hybrids limited the least. 78X-A (114 days), 67X (108 days), 65X (101 days), 59X (98 days), 46X-A (92 days), 370A-3 (85 days).

Low population — When drought is a factor or you're shooting for large ears. 84XP (118 days), 78X-A (114 days), 75X (113 days), 65X (101 days), 59X (98 days), 46X-A (92 days), 370A-3 (85 days).

Very high fertility — Where hybrids are being pushed to the limit. 84XP (118 days), 86X-A (119 days), 75X (113 days), 69XP (105 days), 66XP (103 days), 59X-A (96 days), 505-3 (92 days), 45XP (92 days), 48X-E (87 days), 28XP (79 days).

What's the difference between these two nutrient-rich calf formulas?

Milk Replacer $23.80 per calf. Whole Milk $49 per calf.

About $25 per calf.*

Improved Agway Blue Label and Maxi Care™ milk replacers can cut your calf feeding costs by more than 50%.

At these prices, feeding your calves whole milk doesn't make a whole lot of sense. The average calf consumes about 350 lbs. of whole milk at a cost of about $49 per calf. While a calf raised on milk replacer can be fed for just 68 cents per lb. and needs only 35 lbs. of milk replacer to equal the nutritional value of 350 lbs. of whole milk. Improved Agway Blue Label is an economical, superior choice for calf raisers. And both Blue Label and Maxi Care contain the patented Land-O-Lakes ingredient, Glymaxene, to help reduce scours.

Save your milk money for yourself. Feed your calves quality Agway milk replacers instead.

For more details, contact your local Agway store or Farm Enterprise salesperson.

*Comparisons based on average cost of milk replacer of $34 per 50# bag and $14 per cwt of whole milk.

Shepherds Symposium Scheduled

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Should lambs be forage or grain fed for the marketplace? This important question will be addressed at the Shepherd's Symposium December 7-9 in Lancaster, Pa.

Panel members include Dr. Paul Lynch, ruminant research scientist, USDA, Beltsville, Md.; Dr. Curt Terry, director of lamb marketing, American Sheep Industry Council, Denver, Colo.; and Michelle Davia, Vermont Country Lamb, Inc., Orwell, Vt.

Sheep health, breeding, and management sessions will focus on the latest strategies for a more profitable sheep enterprise.

Dr. Robert Smith, Penn State veterinarian, will present a sheep health update, including mastitis treatment in ewes and the BSE/Scrapie issue.

Sheep producer Peter Wood of Blanchardville, Wis., will discuss how to earn a living entirely from sheep. Wood and his family have developed specific forage/animal production systems and marketing strategies for a profitable small flock enterprise.

The Penn State forage-analysis van will be at the symposium December 7 and 8. A workshop will be held on how to interpret and use the feed analysis report in lamb and winter ewe feeding programs.

Producers should bring their forage and grain supplements for analysis. The $8 per sample charge could result in substantial savings in winter feed costs.

For more information, contact the Penn State Conference and Short Course Office at (814) 865-8301. The registration deadline for price reductions is November 7, 1990.

Sollenberger Receives $50 Check

BONNIE BRECHBILL
Franklin Co. Correspondent

CHAMBERSBURG (Franklin Co.) — A 12 year old St. Thomas boy exhibited both the grand champion and reserve grand champion lambs in the Franklin County 4-H Shepherds Club carcass judging. Scott Sollenberger received a check for $50 for his achievement at the club's annual dinner, held at the Lighthouse Restaurant.

Sollenberger, a member of the Shepherds Club for two years, tied with Joey Peppernick, 12, of Willow Hill for the Most Improved Shepherd award.

The club held only carcass judging this year, rather than on-hoof and carcass judging. According to leader Elisabeth Keener, the club's interest is in producing the highest quality meat animal. "You're not eating a pretty lamb or a blue ribbon," she said. "You're eating lamb chops. The best way to ascertain good meat without tasting it is by carcass judging."

Sollenberger's grand champion lamb was purchased by Dave Byers of Agri-King, Inc. Dean and Becky Sollenberger, Scott's parents, bought the reserve champion lamb.

Also recognized at the banquet was Kelly Boyd, 18, of Chambersburg, Franklin County's Lamb and Wool Queen since 1988. Boyd, a member of the Shepherd's Club since its inception in 1981, was named the 1990 Shepherd of the Year. In presenting the plaque and check to Boyd, Keener said that the selection for Shepherd of the Year is made "not necessarily on the basis of grand champion winners or even the top ten carcass lambs." The winner must be someone who has "bettered themselves as a person, helped 4-H, and contributed to the club," she said.

Rachel Coady of Spring Run received an award for the Best Project Book.

Perfect attendance awards went to Becky Horst, Chambersburg; Carmen Horst, Chambersburg; Sharena Mead, Chambersburg; and Jill Mellott, Waynesboro.

Weight gain awards, for the owners of the lambs that gained the most weight from the end of May to weigh-in at round-up went to: Rebecca Williamson of Dry Run, 84 pounds; Jason Mowery of Shippensburg, 80 pounds; and Kelby Mowery of Shippensburg, 68 pounds.

President of the club Kelby Mowery, a freshman at Pennsylvania State University, is retiring

Donna Boyd, left, and Elisabeth Keener, leaders of the 4-H Shepherds Club, were honored by club members for their years of service.

Employment and Training Corporation visited the Bombergers as part of the job exchange program sponsored by the Lebanon County Farm/City Committee. "You do feel like you're are representing agriculture today," Bomberger said. "You want to leave a good impression and not a bad one."

And apparently a good impression was made.

"I've never been on a farm before," Kopecky said. "I've never had any hands-on experience. But I'm now certainly going to be more aware of what happens in a dairy production as large as this one. You can't get that from reading books or watching TV.

"One thing for certain, you appreciate more what the farmers do. Their day begins long before most of us think of getting out of bed. I enjoy dairy products and I drink a lot of milk. I think I will now appreciate the products even more.

"The price you pay for a half-gallon of milk isn't in any way equivalent to the work that goes into producing it."

Kopecky is chairman of the effort to develop an agricultural security area in Lebanon County, and his committee is ready to present plans to the Lebanon County commissioners.

I'm not against development," Kopecky said. "But I think it's important that we private citizens who are not farmers should be aware that this is something to preserve. Lancaster County got jammed with industry and rampant growth. We should just do the development in the proper areas with good planning."

The Bombergers farm 700 acres with 300 in corn, 150 in soybeans, and 150 in alfalfa. They have 200 cows in DHIA test and about the same number of young stock. The brothers have a family partnership.

"You're dealing with an 11-generation farm family here," Kopecky said. "As David says, 'it all starts with the family.' I think the family farm is fantastic, and that's also what I have come to appreciate today," Kopecky said.

Next week David will be in Rick's offices and will attend the Lion's Club Luncheon at the Quality Inn.

Wind And Snow Load Affect Poultry Enclosures

HERBERT C. JORDAN
Associate Professor of Poultry Science
Penn State University

Pheasant pens and poultry buildings may need examined for design and existing strength for possible damage this winter. To learn more about building design requirements write or call American Society of Agricultural Engineers, 2950 Niles Road, St. Josephs, Michigan 49085, (616) 429-0300 and ask for ASAE Engineering practice publication EP-288. 4 July 1987, Ag Building Snow and Wind Load Information originally from American National Standards Institute A58.1, 1982.

Precipitation (rain) from May through September 1990 has been ahead of normal in most areas of Pennsylvania according to some weather observers. If precipitation remains high this winter 1990-91, heavy snow loads could collapse a pheasant pen or a poultry or rabbit building. This is expensive.

Our goal is to design snow load plus dead load into all structures adequately, examine older structures for quality of load strength, reinforce roof if necessary, and consider wind and snow load, which are both important. Mountainous areas may have heavier snows than low lands.

In some cases, fresh snow has successfully been removed from a roof; however, it is difficult at best. If the snow is fresh or new and fluffy or dry it appears easier to remove.

Complaints If We Do, If We Don't

DICK BARTH
General Manager
PA DHIA

We get about 400 telephone calls a month at the service center about all kinds of things.

And while we make mistakes, probably too often, I think the DHIA staff goes out of its way to help members with their problems.

When we do make mistakes, you can bet we will hear about that from someone, usually an angry member.

Now and then I hear about a mistake directly from a member who calls and insists on talking to the general manager (why they insist on that is a mystery because everyone knows the general manager doesn't know anything!).

A couple of weeks ago I got a call from a member who wanted to relate his displeasure about the board's decision to rank herds on the basis of protein, not fat production.

Even though the conversation was very cordial, I was baffled by his complaint. The evidence of the American public's rejection of animal fat in their diet is overwhelming. Even the USDA has stopped ranking AI bulls on fat and has switched to protein dollars.

If anything, I thought DHIA's change to protein ranking was behind the times.

I know the argument: no one in Pennsylvania (or practically no one) is being paid on protein production, so why rank cows on it?

There is a simple answer to that, and the handwriting is on the wall for those who will read it; it takes generations of cows to achieve genetic change and if you don't get a start on breeding for protein now, you'll just be that much farther behind when the inevitable happens.

Since the cow year ended on Sept. 30, and year-end reports are out, I suspect we'll get more complaints in the near future because someone's cow came in third, or second in the county instead of first, which would not have happened if we continued to rank cows on fat, like we always used to.

Just one request, please.

Before you call, will you consider the mountain of butterfat that the U.S. government is storing in the CCC and what we should do to stop the mountain from getting any bigger?

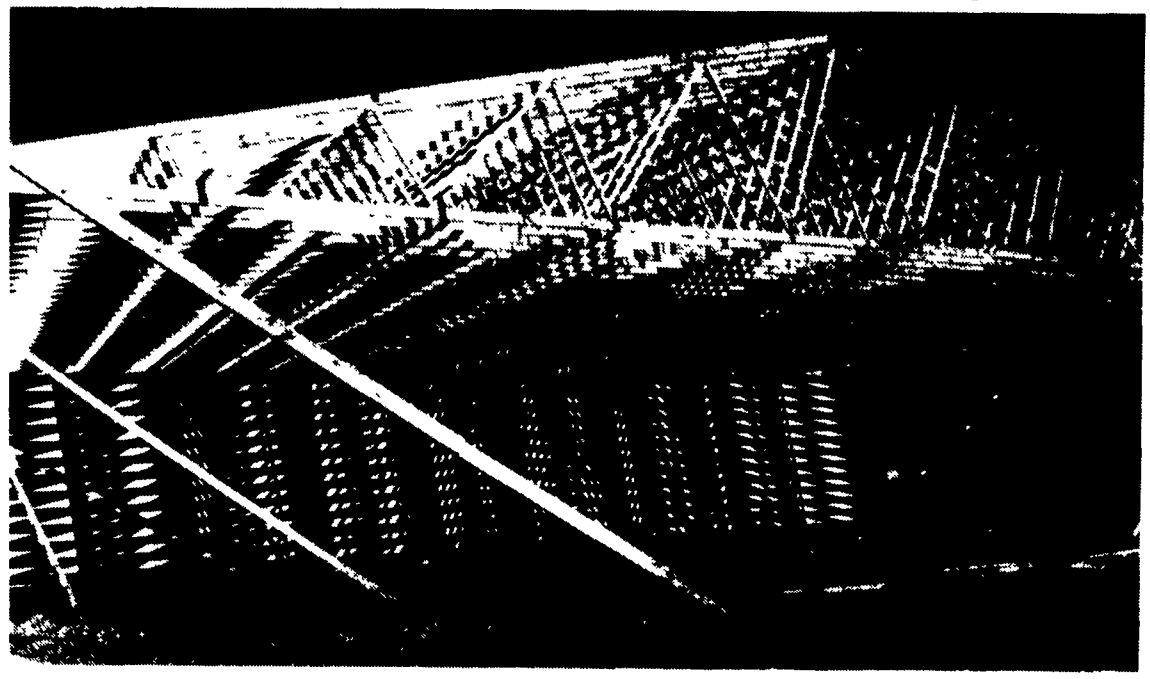
100 Foot Trusses On New Building



These 100ft. Rigidply trusses are assembled on a new building at Air Deck airport near Myerstown in Lancaster County. They are the longest trusses ever manufactured by Rigidply Rafters Inc., Richland. They contain extra web members, truss plates and stronger lumber to carry the weight. According to Stanley Hartzler, sales, the hauling truck needed additional preparation because the trusses extended 25 ft. over the normal bed.

Dover Young Farmers To Hold Show

DOVER (York Co.) — Plans are being finalized for the 12th annual Dover Young Farmers Association's crops show, Wednesday, November 14, beginning at 7 p.m. at the Dover High School's cafeteria.

Entry is open to all York County farmers who wish to participate. Prizes will be awarded to winners in all crop categories.

A highlight of the contest will be demonstrations by the Penn State mobile forage testing van, with capabilities for testing nutrient values on various crops. Forages from several farmers will be tested so that comparisons can be made as to their placement of the samples in the contest. Displays by local agribusinesses and door prizes are also planned.

Farm City Set For Full Agenda

Each county's program is judged by the state Farm-City Council and the county with the best program for the year is presented an award, usually during Farm Show week.

Traditionally, the state holds a kick-off event in conjunction with the program planned in the county which won the previous year.

As a changed of pace, this year the state council has come up with a kick-off program to be held in Philadelphia.

Tentative plans are to hold the 1991 kick-off event in Pittsburgh, according to council officials.

Lebanon County, state winner for the past two years, already began its Farm-City program on Tuesday with a media luncheon. The presentation was held at the house of program chairman Connie Hoffer.

A number of representatives from newspapers and radio stations attended the event, and were provided detailed schedules, fact sheets, and interviews on the numerous activities scheduled.

The council however is holding the state kick-off event in Philadelphia in an attempt to take the Farm-City message closer to the city people.

Specifically, the state Kick-Off Day schedule begins at 6:30 a.m. in the parking lot of the Horticulture Hall of Fairmount Park. There, city and agriculture leaders from around the state are to meet and depart for a 7 a.m. tour of the Food Distribution Center.

At 8:30 a.m., participants are to leave for a drive by of the Agway and Conrail facilities.

At 9 a.m., a tour of the marine terminal and port authority is scheduled.

A luncheon in the Horticulture Hall is set for 11:30 a.m. The featured speakers include U.S. Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Franklin Bailey and city of Philadelphia Mayor W. Wilson Goode.

Dr. Lamartine Hood, dean of the Penn State University College of Agriculture and Dr. John Mertz, provost for Delaware Valley College will share duties as master of ceremonies during the luncheon.

Steven Crawford, deputy secretary of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture and Alan Wood, assistant director of the Philadelphia Port Authority are to provide comments.

Presentations during the luncheon are to be made by Dalton Paul, chairman of the Pennsylvania Farm City Week.

At 2 p.m. a tour and visit of the student leaders at Saul Agriculture School is planned.

Lebanon County Celebrates

Out of all the counties that have events planned in observation of the week, Lebanon County may have the heaviest agenda.

The Lebanon program, about 10-years-old, is done by the Lebanon County Chamber of Commerce Agriculture Committee, a group that consists of agribusiness and agricultural people in the community.

The committee is devoted to maintaining understanding and serve as a liason between non-agricultural and agricultural interests, for the betterment of the county.

On Friday, Nov. 9, and Saturday, Nov. 10, a Farm-City Mall Show is planned.

Available on both days in the mall is a duck slide; egg incubator; farm animal display, including additions of exotic rabbits, llamas and a Vietnamese pot bellied pig; 4-H and FFA displays; Lebanon County Farm Women's Society Bake Sale; Limestone Springs display; free Farm-City helium balloons; coloring contest pictures; dog power displays; local commodity queens, kiny, and princesses; chair caning demonstrations; quilting demonstrations; and farm tractors inside and outside of the mall, including hay rides.

In addition to those programs, also on Friday:

- Starting 6 p.m. is a Mr. and Mrs. Farm-City Contest to be held in the mall. Open to boys and girls aged 4- to 6-years-old, the contest is elibible to those who register by Wednesday (For more information, call Cathy Whittaker at 274-6907). Each winner is to receive a $50 savings bond, two tickets to Lebanon's Farm-City Week banquet, and a plaid shirt, bib overalls and boots.
- At 7 p.m., Friday, a meat cutting demonstration by Dr. James Watkins of the PSU meat laboratory is set.
- At 8 p.m., a 20-foot chees hoagie is to be made by the county Dairy Promotion Committee and free samples distributed.
- At 8:30 p.m., is the auction of beef cuts from the meat cutting demonstration.

On Saturday, additional events are to be:

- From 10 a.m. to noon, butter churning demonstration by dairy promotion committee.
- Noon, a baking contest.
- Noon to 2 p.m., 4-H Stir-Fry demonstration with free samples.
- Noon to 9 p.m., Free non-alcoholic drinks.
- 1 p.m. to 4 p.m., South Eastern Cattlemen's Association (formerly Berks County Cattlemen's Association) is to sell Delmonico steak sandwiches in the parking lot.

On Monday, Nov. 12, Lebanon County Farm-City is taking a group of senior citizens on a tour of two farms in the south eastern part of the county: the David and Mary Peachey (Amish) dairy farm; and Wen-Crest farm, owned by Glenn, Jean, Steve and Bonnie Wenger. Wen-Crest is a dairy and turkey operation.

Also on Monday, a student tour of the Vincent and Juliet Wagner dairy farm, near Reistville, is planned.

banquet, the people involved in farm-city week work exchange program provide recaps of their day in another's shoes.

Also during the banquet, the shawl made at the mall show is to be auctioned off to raise money for next year's farm-city week activities. Door prizes are to be awarded.

Other counties which provided Farm-City Week program schedules to Lancaster Farming for publication include Lancaster, Berks, Franklin and Chester.

All four of those counties are planning open-house farm tours. Berks county also has a banquet scheduled.

Lancaster County Tours

In Lancaster County, nine of farms are slated for Saturday, Nov. 17, and Sunday, Nov.18. Details of the locations of the farms will be in the next issue of Lancaster Farming.

The tours are basically open invitations to visit some of Lancaster County's different agricultural operations.

DDL Farm is owned by the Landis family. The 70-acre horse farm has been one of the more popular sites during Farm-City Week. On Saturday only, $1 pony rides are to be offered by the Saddle Clinches 4-H club, all proceeds are to go to the "Misty of Chincoteaque" Foundation. The farm has facilities to house 27 horses. There are seven Begiums, three Perchons and 17 boarding horses.

Landis Bros. John Deere farm machinery is located along Route 72. New farm machinery will be on display. The equipment company has been in business since 1920 and offers an opportunity to browse and check price tags which will be on the machines during the two days.

Dairy Farm of Mr. and Mrs. John Landis is located at 1801 Colebrook Road, near the intersection of State Road. The 270-head milking herd operation also maintains about 200 head of replacement cattle. Those who wish to see cows milked can visit between 1 p.m. and 5 p.m. on both days.

Sporting Valley Turf Farms Inc., is a new addition to the type of agricultural operation in business today. The farm maintains 400 acres of turf grass and is a cultivated sod production wholesale grower. The farm is at the intersection of Colebrook and Junction roads.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Rohrer and son operate a 70-acre farm with 20 acres of orchard and 100 head of Angus and Angus-cross bred beef cattle. Rorhrer's Farm Mart & Fruit Orchard is a century farm (been in the same family for at least 100 years) and produces raspberries, apricots, cherries, plums, nectarines, apples, pears and peaches. Located along Junction Road, near Colebrook Road.

Penn State University Experimental Farm is managed by John Yocum. The place is PSU's southeastern research location and work is done on field crops, plant breeding, pest control soil fertility, and soil management. The farm is located along Auction Road, near Shenck Road.

Balmer Bros. Hog Operation is a 1,200 hog finishing house. The operation finishes about 3,600 head of hogs a year. The operation is located along Breneman Road, near Rt. 283.

Fairveiw Farms is owned by Mr. and Mrs. John Wogelmuth and sons. This Mt. Joy area poultry farm is home to 100,000 Leghorn laying hens and is located along Orchard Road, near Schwanger Road.

Bill and Peggy Longenecker, also of Mt. Joy, is a commercial breeding facility of some 300 Plypay and Suffolk sheep. In addition, Bill has been a reverend at Stevens Hill Community Church for the past 42 years. The farm is located along Risser Road near Mt. Pleasant Road.

Berks County

Berks County has been a winner of the statewide Farm-City Week program contest. However, officials said they prefer not to create as heavy a schedule as Lebanon County.

"We don't do a lot of things during Farm-City Week," said Clyde Myers, extension agent for Berks County. "We like to spread our activities throughout the year."

The two events Berks County does in November for Farm-City are holding a banquet and listing a number of farms that are open to the public for a specific time.

This year the Berks County Seventh Annual Farm-City Banquet is being held at the Riveredge Restaurant on Nov. 8. The restaurant is located along Rt. 183, south of Reading Airport.

Myers said he expects about 400 people to attend the evening festivity. On the menu is a choice of stuffed pheasant breast or filet mignon wrapped in bacon. The price of the meal is $14 per person.

Those interested in purchasing tickets should contact Myers immediately.

The evening begins at 6 p.m. with a social hour. Two highlights of the program are presentations by the people who have been involved in the county's work exchange program between city people and farm people and the presentation of awards.

There will also be a quilt raffle to raise money for the Farm-City program. The quilt was made by the Pomona Grange.

Berks County farm tours are set for Nov. 11 and Nov. 12 from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. include 11 participating operations. This is the 17th year the farm tours have been offered. They are sponsored by the Berks County Farmers Association.

New Holland Names Dairy Champions

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.)—At the New Holland Sales Stables dairy cow show and sale held Wednesday, the excellent 92 point show cow consigned by Charles Myers was named grand champion and later sold to Paul Zimmerman for $4700. Judge Orin Bender, Maryland, said the consignors had brought together a fine group of cattle that were on par with many of the dairy shows held in the area.

The classifier had just raised the grand champion's type score from EX 90 to EX 92 and she was working on a 1,000 lb. record after completing her four-year-old record of 23,500m 4.6f 1037f.

The reserve grand champion of the show was entered by Fred Pottiger, a VG three-year-old with a string of five generations of excellent dams behind her. The reserve champion sold to Dale Hostetter for $4600.

The other first place winners and their selling prices are: MIXED BREED DRY COW. Charles Myers, $2250, MIXED BREED FRESH COW Alfred Albright, $2250; TWO-YEAR-OLD DRY HEIFER. Robert Kennedy, $2600, TWO-YEAR-OLD FRESH HEIFER. Fred Pottiger, $1800, THREE-YEAR-OLD DRY HEIFER: Stonehurst Farm, $2300, THREE-YEAR-OLD FRESH HEIFER. Fred Pottiger, $4600; MATURE DRY COW: Charles Myers, $2800; MATURE FRESH COW: Charles Myers, $4700.

Horse Plowing Contest Held

BANGOR (Northampton Co.)—The horse plowing match that was held in conjunction with the Blue Mt. Gas and Steam Show had nine contestants, an increase of four teams. These teams came from Franlklin, Monroe, Perry, Northampton and Berks counties in Pennsylvania and Mercer, Monmouth and Salem in New Jersey.

Large crowds were on hand for the horse event held the second day, and nice weather prevailed. Howell Living Historical Farm and Longstreet Farms, both historical farms, participated.

Kelly Stewart says they are open to more contestants next year.

Silo Takes Tumble

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

DOVER (York Co.) — Jerry Rutter thought his employee was kidding when he said one of the silos on his Dover livestock farm was leaning. But the comment was no joke.

It was about 10:30 a.m. on the morning of October 11 when the silo's tilt was first noticed. Around noon, the 24x90-feet stave unit crashed to the ground.

"We go past that silo every day and never saw any indication of anything wrong," Rutter said. The Dover beef and hog producer very willingly tells the tale of the toppled silo, as a reminder to fellow farmers that such structural failure can occur, and sometimes with almost no warning.

"The footer didn't give way and only one hoop gave. It was staves at the bottom on one side that gave way. And that was the best silo we had," he adds. Testimony to the silo's overall solidity was in the top three-quarters of the unit, which remained intact even after the earth-shaking collapse.

Some 1900 tons of silage had been stored in the unit just two weeks before the 15-year-old structure tumbled. Counting his blessings, Rutter noted that the silo did go down in the best possible direction, into an open area away from the barn and feedlot, where several hundred steers are fattened annually.

About 20 truckloads of feed and crushed staves were hauled away immediately, to keep clear a waterway which handles runoff from the Conewago Road which passes through the Rutter farm. Rutter expects to be able to salvage most of the remaining silage, which was promptly covered with plastic tarps.

FLO-STAR™ claw

It All Adds Up

Bou-Matic Flo-Star™ Claw Equals Improved Udder Health, Milk Quality and Efficiency

+ Improved Udder Health - Flo-Star claw reduces liner slippage and helps prevent air from moving milk, which could be carrying bacteria, towards teats. Milk moves quickly from the Flo-Star claw without flooding and causing excessive fluctuation in vacuum. The results add up to less mastitis, healthier cows and greater profits.

+ More Efficient Milk Time - The Flo-Star claw moves milk quickly. Even the fastest milking cow can't flood this claw. Units stay on better and teatcups squawk less - this means you spend less time running around and more time milking your cows. The Flo-Star claw is lightweight and easy to handle.

+ Better Milk Quality -The Flo-Star claw is available with a vacuum shut-off valve. If a cow kicks her unit off, the valve closes automatically and cuts off the vacuum. The automatic shut off keeps dirt, straw and other contaminants out of the milk.

$2 Million Holstein Sale Could Be Largest For Year

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

AMERY, Wis. — A 3-year-old Holstein cow, Hilltop-Hanover-B Bellerina-ET, recently sold for $210,000 during a sale of 182 lots at Hilltop-Hanover Farm in Yorktown, N.Y., that grossed almost $2 million.

According to sales manager Tom Morris LTD, of Amery Wis., the sale grossed $1,793,974 and averaged $9,857 per head. It included a variety of cows, heifers and bulls.

It is believed to have been the highest averaging sale in the East so far this year, according to the Morris agency.

Large sales of top-notch Holstein stock have intermittently occured at Hilltop-Hanover Farm Sales over the years. It was not a herd dispersal, according to the Morris agency. Hilltop-Hanover Farm is managed by David Younger.

The buyer of Bellerina-ET was B.Giles Brophy, of New York City. The consignor was Brophy, Cormdale & Valentina, also of New York City.

Bellerina was graded a Very Good-88 and as a 2-year-old showed a 365-day lactation record of 37,359 pounds of milk with 4.6 percent milkfat (1,734 pounds).

Bellerina's dam is Brigeen Hanover Debra, an Excellent EE91 as an 8-year-old. Debra is well known because she is the Holstein breed's only fourth generation cow rated Excellent to pass a production record of 40,000 pounds of milk in a lactation. As a 3-year-old, Debra made 42,910 pounds of milk, 1,882 pounds of milkfat and 1,389 pounds of protein during a 365-day lactation. That was on a twice-a-day milking schedule.

The sire of Bellerina is Carlin-M Ivanhoe Bell, an Excellent 93 at 12-years and also very well known in the Holstein breed and is a gold medal proven sire. He has a PTA of +1,648 milk, +57fat and +54protein. He was rated 99 percent reliable in July.

The second highest selling animal went for $115,000 and is a maternal sister to Bellerina. Hilltop-Hanover-B Mark Dove-ET, born in November 1986, is rated an Excellent 92 and as a 2-year-old produced 21,490 pounds of milk, 818 pounds of milkfat and 732 protein.

Purchased by Kathleen E. Seidel, Bellemead, N.J., Dove was sired by Walkway Chief Mark, also rated 99 percent reliable in July. Dove was consigned by Brophy, Shore, Cormdale & Valentina.

Buyers at the sale came from more than 20 states, Canadian provinces and several foreign countries.

Hughes Receives National Recognition

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — "It's always nice to have an agent recognized for accomplishments like this," said Chet Hughes, Lancaster County Extension livestock agent, regarding his recently acquired National Achievement Award.

Hughes received the award at the recent 1990 National Association of County Agricultural Agents (NACAA) convention in Seattle, Washington.

According to Doyle Thomas, Susquehanna County extension director and state Awards Committee chairman, Hughes was honored for his "outstanding educational contributions to Pennsylvania agriculture."

Hughes was instrumental in providing leadership in the Lancaster County Sheep and Wool Growers Association, which he organized in 1986, and now numbers about 75. He promoted education as the association's main objective and conducted three shearing schools training 65 shepherds, according to Thomas.

The award is presented by the NACAA to one agent from each state who has less than 10 years of service.

he received a bachelor of science degree in animal industries in 1977. After graduation, he joined the Penn State Extension as an assistant agent in Susquehanna County. Before moving to the Lancaster extension office, he was employed as a Northeast regional manager for the American Angus Association, based in St. Joseph, Mo.

Hughes, who was promoted from associate agent to county agent this year, is responsible for promoting beef, swine, and sheep in the 4-H, FFA, and adult education programs. He also coordinates a 250-member 4-H livestock and meats program and coaches nine state champion judging teams.

Atlantic Dairy Up For Annual Meeting

SOUTHAMPTON, (Bucks Co.) — Atlantic Dairy Cooperative is gearing up for its 73rd annual meeting scheduled for Nov. 15-16 at the Sheraton Lancaster Host Resort in Lancaster, Pa.

"The Spirit of Growth" is the theme for the 1990 meeting, which brings together Atlantic's management, board of directors, delegates and guests. Management reports will focus on the cooperative's fiscal year, in which $24.6 million in equity, quality premiums and over-order premiums was paid out to members, in addition to the twice monthly milk payments.

The two-day meeting gets underway Nov. 15 at 9:45 p.m. with reports by Atlantic's officers and management staff. Dr. Paul E. Hand, general manager, will present his report to the cooperative members during the afternoon program, which begins at 1:20 p.m.

Following Dr. Hand's report, James P. (Tom) Camerlo Jr., president of Western Dairymen Cooperative Inc. of Florence, Colo., will give an update on Farm Bill and dairy legislation. Camerlo also serves as president of the National Milk Producers Federation.

The annual banquet will begin at 6:15 p.m. Thursday night in the Sheraton Showroom. George Steele, retired chairman of the board of Agway Inc., will serve as master of ceremonies. The guest speaker will be Michael Broome, a favorite among agricultural organizations, who will present a motivational message on "A Professional and Personal Look at Success."

The business meeting will resume Friday morning following the Young Cooperative Breakfast Program. Speaker Cynthia Kereluk, spokesperson for the Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Association, will wake up the morning crowd with a presentation based on her nationally syndicated exercise show, "The Everyday Workout."

During the breakfast program, Atlantic will honor its 1990 Agricultural Communicator Award winner and the 1990 Outstanding Young Cooperator couple.

At 9 a.m., the delegate session will begin with action on the 1990 annual meeting resolutions. The session will be chaired by Chester Erb of Roaring Spring, chairman of the Resolutions Committee.

Special activities have been planned for those not attending the general sessions. The Ladies Program, chaired by Martha Cook of Newark, Del., will offer a variety of educational programs. Activities on Thursday include either a shopping trip to Vanity Fair in Reading, or a musical excursion to the Dutch Apple Theater for a buffet lunch and the showing of "Me and My Girl."

Friday's program will include a presentation by Jean Musser of Lancaster on "Quilting -- The Past, Present and Future." In addition, Carolyn Weaver from Dairy Council of Camp Hill, will present "Healthy Dividends...Managing Your Fat Budget."

For information on reservations and banquet tickets, please contact Terri Milinovich, secretary to the general manager, at (215) 322-0200.

Milk Prices Drop As Fast As They Rose

SCRANTON (Lackawanna Co.)— Within the last month prices have dropped so fast you'd think there was a hole in the old milk bucket and within the last two weeks it even looks like you lost the bucket.

Butter prices have been sitting on their support price all year and powder prices were doing well until two months ago but cheese, enjoying the highest demand in 14 years, was carrying the load to keep the Minnesota-Wisconsin Price Series at record highs each month.

Last month I said it looked like the end was in sight when cheese prices fell eight cents from $1.46 to $1.38, but that was really the beginning of the end.

It looked pretty good after Labor Day and cheese prices gained a few cents back up to $1.40, but then they began to slip each week and ended the month at $1.33 (only five cents under last month).

Then in October the bottom fell out of cheese prices. On Oct. 12 the price plummeted to $1.14 at the National Cheese Exchange and that's only three cents above the support price for 40 pound blocks.

That's a drop of 19 cents in two weeks and that too may be a record. And if you want to go back to the $1.46 in August, it's a total of 32 cents in nine weeks. That translates into $3.20 in milk prices.

Don't Look Now!

You haven't seen it yet in your milk check, but if you know anything about where your milk prices come from, you should be afraid to look back to see what's catching up to you.

You can get a pretty good idea from what is happening to the M-W price that fell 34 cents in August from $13.43 to $13.09 but now you can add another 59-cent drop in September to $12.50 for a total of 93 cents in two months. And that's before cheese prices fell over 10 cents in October.

The signals seem to be loud and clear that processors have enough cheese for the holidays and will use up their inventories (that in August were 19 percent higher than last year) and wait for the spring flush to fill up again. After all, milk production is on the increase nationally and, with a good crop year, is likely to continue through the winter.

Predictions that prices would be down to support levels whatever they are by spring, seem more realistic now than they did last month.

Milk Check Prices

Cheese prices don't pay your feed bill, but they are a sign of milk prices ahead. That should prepare you for the future.

The M-W price has already dropped 93 cents in the last two months to $12.50. It is the first time since 1987 that it wasn't higher than September of the year before. Actually, the M-W price is 60 cents less than last year.

The price drop also ended a year-long string of record highs for the month on the M-W price.

The importance of the M-W is that it determines the class prices handlers pay for milk in Federal Orders. In turn, it also determines the uniform or blend price you get on your milk check.

The September Class I price is calculated from the July M-W so you'll still see a record high of $15.98 last month for fluid milk. The September Class II price is based on the current M-W and that will reflect the 60-cent drop.

The bottom line, the uniform or blend price, won't look so bad yet at $14.27 in Order 2 and that's still 27 cents better than last year and still a record for the month. However, the gap keeps narrowing each month when compared to a year ago. In July the difference was $1.64 then $1.14 in August and now down to 27 cents in September.

If nothing else gets your attention to show the trend, that should do it considering that you expect milk prices to be increasing in the fall months. Now we're looking at a drop of 16 cents from August to September.

That would be bad enough, but when you add the nine cent increase in the payback from the Louisville Plan that you got in September the market price difference is 25 cents between August and September. Those Louisville Plan paybacks will end in November and along with the expected drops in the M-W December blend prices may fall below $13 in Order 2 but your average price for the year will provide another record high for 1990.

Farm Bill

I can add nothing to the confusion in Washington surrounding the federal budget but it seems unlikely that the support price will be changed before the end of the year.

The present support price of $10.10 for manufacturing grade milk was set in the current bill to go to the end of calendar 1991 not the end of the fiscal year which was September 30.

In addition, if you can believe anything, both the House and the Senate agreed on a minimum of $10.10 for the new bill. That may be changed, but at the rate progress is being made we may not have a new farm bill in place by December.

If a lame duck session after election day is needed to fill in the blanks left in the proposal adopted this month, it's hard to imagine an effective farm bill that changes the situation much before next year.

However, going back to the original summit proposal of the combined administration and congressional efforts before Labor Day, it did contain a $1.3 billion reduction in all farm programs for next year, but no one knows for sure if that will stand or how much will come out of the dairy program. Perhaps we shouldn't be in a hurry for a settlement because it isn't likely to be good news for dairymen and it doesn't look like Congress will let Gramm-Rudman do the work for them.

Mixed Rations, Sounds Of Music Mean Most To Daview Farm

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

KUTZTOWN (Berks Co.) — What do total mixed rations and The Guess Who's "These Eyes" have in common?

The answer: Daview Farms, and a new perspective on dairy profitability, at least for one Berks County farm family.

Luther and Teresa Davis manage a 155-acre (125 tillable), 120-head farm, which consists of 70 registered Holstein cows and 50 replacement heifers. This year, the farm placed in the top 20 of the Pennsylvania Dairy Herd Improvement Association (DHIA) Program's rolling herd averages for milk and protein. According to DHIA records, that meant a total of 23,393 pounds with 863 milkfat and 754 protein pounds.

The road to having a top herd began in 1987, when the Davis family switched from relying on old forage rations and haylages to total mixed rations (TMR) and a little bit of the good old oldies songs on the radio.

Cows comfortable

"If people feel more comfortable listening to oldies music, why wouldn't cows?" said Teresa. Apparently, some dairy farmers believe that because the cows may be more comfortable listening to radio music piped into the barn, cows will stay alert longer, thus producing more milk and stay healthier.

But the real difference was in the TMR, which Daview began to use in 1987. The TMR consists of high-moisture shelled corn, corn silage, haylage, and added protein, minerals, and vitamins, adjusted to the needs of the herd based on the quality of the forage at cutting.

"We were at 19,000 pounds and improved about 2,500 pounds the first year we were on TMR," said Teresa. "It was a big thrill for us to go over 20,000 pounds — for us it was a big jump. It immediately paid itself off the first year through milk production. And it's not going to stop."

The mixed rations is managed by Timothy C. Kiffling, a nutritionist in Robesonia, Pa. In addition, a veterinarian, Dennis C. Hoshall from Oley, Pa. visits twice a month to check for overall health of the cows and update the Davis family on what to do to maintain good herd conditions.

Improved milk

But it was a combination of TMR, good hay cutting schedules, and improved dairy herd management that helped Daview improve the milk production at the farm.

"We keep a close eye on the cows all the time and try to keep everything right," said Teresa. "We try to keep the cows healthy. The veterinarian can tell if the ovaries are functioning or not. And if they're not breeding, there's a reason why, whether it's in the feed or with their health."

Teresa mentioned a recent article in a dairy magazine which underlined the importance of checking the cows and being alert for changes in health. "It comes from the day the cow has a calf, all the way through milking and all," she said. "You have to really work with them."

The past year was the best in terms of averages. Last year for the Daview farm, the rolling herd produced more than 21,000 pounds of milk; two years ago, the rolling herd averaged more than 22,000 pounds. The family tries "all the time" to breed for a high individual lactating cow, and wait for the time that may "happen if it happens," said Luther.

Cows in heat

Another large aspect to the successful increase was keeping track of the cows in heat, according to Luther and Teresa. "You read about it all the time," said Teresa, "but if you're not around the cows, you're not going to see them in heat and you're not going to see if they're off feeds. You have to really spend the time with them."

Teresa and Luther Davis have been renting the farm since 1980 from a local owner, Lester C. Miller, Kutztown. The farm, about 120 years old, is a Century Farm. Recently they found out that the owners are distantly related to the Davis family. "This is terrific," said Teresa, "because you know it's been in the family for years."

They chose to continue the Daview prefix begun by Luther's father. Luther wants to keep his farm a "family operation."

The family runs the entire farm — including son Gregory, 7; Erica, 11, and, in the future, son Aaron, 2. Gregory and Erica attend Greenwich School in Kutztown. Erica has been a member of 4-H for three years and Gregory will soon join 4-H.

Erica Davis, 11, shows her champion fitter 3-year-old, "Ballerina," which placed high in several area fairs, including Kutztown and Reading.

Placed first

The children exhibited in local fairs, including the state 4-H show in Harrisburg, the Kutztown 4-H dairy roundup, the Kutztown and Reading fairs, the Eastern Championship Show, and the Penn State Fall Championship Show, where Erica exhibited her Futurity entry. A summer yearling placed first at every local show Erica participated in. And her three-year-old "Ballerina" placed first in the fitting championship at the Kutztown

(Turn to Page A41)

Part of the daily chores includes feeding the cows on the Davis Farm, which Gregory Davis does once a day. The Davis family manages 120 head of registered Holstein. The Davis farm was one of the top 20 on the Pennsylvania Dairy Herd Improvement Association annual top herd averages for milk and protein.

Gregory Davis, 7, displays the Daview granddaughter, "Nanci," a February 1990 calf which took third place at the Reading Fair.

A combination of total mixed rations and oldies music were some of the key ingredients to a strongly improved rolling herd average for milk and protein, placing the Davis family from Krumsville, Berks Co. in the top 20 annual average from the Pennsylvania DHIA. Front left, Erica Davis, 11 and Gregory, 7; back left, Luther; Aaron, 2; and Teresa.

Aaron Davis, 2, begins to learn his share of the chores on the family farm by sweeping the front of the cows' trough.

Dairylea Sponsors Farm Management Sessions

SYRACUSE, NY — As part of Dairylea's commitment to providing members valued and needed services to increase on-farm profitability, the Cooperative is sponsoring farm management sessions throughout the Northeast.

The sessions, based on the PRO-DAIRY curriculum developed by Cornell University, are designed to assist dairy farm managers in identifying and capitalizing on farm opportunities. The curriculum is comprised of a two-session workshop course; "Managing For Success" — a management clinic where participants meet with the farm management team on an individual basis — followed by management focus workshops.

"Managing for Success" sessions in Pennsylvania include:

Spartansburg, November 6 & 13, Dutch Treat Rest, 10:30 a.m.-3 p.m.

Middleburg Center, November 7 & 14, Nile Rest, 10:30 a.m.-3 p.m.

Tunkhannock, November 8 & 15, Shadowbrook Rest, 10:30 a.m.-3 p.m.

"With farm management, the most specific we can be in identifying ways for farmers to improve income, the more likely the concepts will be put into practice," said Jamie Zimmerman, Dairylea farm resource specialist. "We sponsor these sessions so dairy farmers can have more of a direct impact on their bottom lines," he said.

The sessions are open to all dairy farmers. In addition to sponsoring the sessions, Dairylea will reimburse its members for course-related expenses.

According to Zimmerman, the Cooperative's Farm Management Program was developed in response to Dairylea's mission statement: To improve returns to members while providing valued services to help reduce costs and thereby increase net income. "Farm Management is critical to farmer success now more than ever, as we are seeing cycles of great price and productions swings," he said.

The PRO-DAIRY curriculum is just one aspect of Dairylea's Farm Management Program. Other efforts designed to increase profitability include a member loan program, DEBB (Dairylea's Electronic Bulletin Board), production incentive programs, and direct deposit of member milk checks. In addition, the Cooperative has farm resource specialists who assist members individually with farm management practices.

For additional information, or to register for the farm management sessions, contact Dairylea's Membership Department at 1-800-722-0231 (New York) or 1-800-654-8838 (other states).

Mid East UDIA Promotes Food Editor

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Jenny Plocher, formerly food editor for Mid East United Dairy Industry Association (UDIA), has been promoted to director of consumer marketing, announced general manager Scott Higgins.

As food editor Plocher coordinated and implemented food publicity programs that emphasized the use of real dairy products to consumers, food and health editors and home economists.

In her new role she directs the coordinated nutrition communications efforts with the Dairy and Nutrition Council-Mid East.

"The consumer marketing program is an aggressive approach to meet a significant consumer demand to deliver accurate nutrition information, and it will also create a larger market for dairy products," said Higgins.

Plocher said that Mid East UDIA has targeted consumers through food publicity efforts generated from the association's central office in Columbus. "And the 12 offices of the Dairy and Nutrition Council-Mid East pursued additional efforts in their service areas," she said.

"But the consumer marketing program will provide more efficient and effective nutrition communications that will build on existing successful nutrition education programs to reach consumers with unified dairy-friendly messages," she said.

The fall issue of the FYI newsletter marked the first step in facilitating the new consumer marketing direction.

The four-page publication was sent to more than 20,000 individuals who play a role in educating consumers of all ages about nutrition and fitness: teachers, principals, school nurses, cooperative extension, etc. FYI focuses on health and dietary concerns facing Americans today. Information on Dairy Council programs, nutrition updates and answers to contemporary health-related issues are also featured.

In addition, the Dairy Council offices provide an insert for each issue that highlights programs and other information pertinent to their respective areas.

Plocher also said she is coordinating all nutrition communications efforts with the nutrition education consultants and "training them to enhance their media relations skills to best position our messages."

Monthly nutrition news releases and seasonal media kits will also provide dairy-friendly practical applications for a nutritionally-balanced diet.

"Localization is our strength," says Plocher. "Educators and the media are more likely to be receptive to a contact person in their own area. We want our audiences to recognize Dairy Council as a key nutrition authority and to utilize our resources."

In 1991 Mid East will sponsor a media conference to reintroduce dairy products and their versatility for the busy lifestyles of the 1990s consumer. In addition to offering new recipe ideas at the conference, Mid East will focus on food safety, new dietary guidelines and new labeling laws.

"These new consumer marketing efforts are the beginning of a program that will position Mid East to have a stronger presence in the media, throughout the Mid East marketing area, with our unified real-dairy messages," Higgins said.

Mid East UDIA is the dairy-farmer-funded advertising and promotion program serving Ohio, western Pennsylvania and parts of West Virginia and northern Kentucky. The association also administers the advertising and promotion programs of the Federal Order 36 Advertising and Promotion Agency and coordinates programs with the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program. In conjunction with 18 UDIA member organizations nationwide, Mid East supports a total dairy promotion program through advertising, retail marketing, foodservice development, consumer marketing and nutrition education and research.

New M-F 300 Series Hiline Cab Tractors

"I thought cabs were a luxury. Now I know better."

When he stopped in last month to price a new utility tractor, Joe Bunson got a big surprise His favorite tractors — the M-F 300 Series — now came with a cab option

"I'm a very practical person . just ask my wife. That's why I like the M-F 300 Series tractors so much But I just never figured a cab was all that necessary

"I do now That M-F Hiline cab really changed my mind.

"For starters, it's tight and quiet... it really fits the tractor to a tee.

"Visibility's good, too, even at night. And the dual-level heating and air conditioning lets me keep going long after dark without coming home totally beat

"My dealer says more farmers bought M-F tractors last year than any other make...one out of every five tractors sold in the Western World.

"Doesn't surprise me any. Those Perkins engines are just amazing. Lots of low-end torque, and they're still more economical and reliable than anything else I've seen.

"And my neighbors can't figure out how I get such a smooth job of plowing. I tell them it's just skill...but really it's the Ferguson hydraulics.

"Yes, sir. Getting that new M-F 390T with the Hiline cab is probably the most practical thing I've done You ought to go get one for yourself."

MAKING ENDS MEET

Patricia L. Powley
Extension Home Economist

Making ends meet is a challenge for almost every family.

One of the most important steps in meeting that challenge is a spending/saving plan tailored to fit your family. Your plan for saving/-spending is a guide for distributing your income so that it provides for your needs and as many of your wants as possible. It will help you:

- Live within your income.
- Place needs above wants.
- Set aside money for large anticipated expenses and emergencies.
- Save for the things you want.
- Avoid or reduce family financial arguments.
- Spend more effectively.
- Make dreams become reality.

A successful plan is a servant, not a master. It is tailored to your family's resources, special values, goals, and needs.

There is no right or wrong plan. A plan that is agreed upon by your own family is likely to be the "right" plan for you.

Your family

Every family differs from every other family. Accordingly, each family needs a spending/saving plan to fit its particular resources, values, needs, and goals.

Families differ in:

- Size of the family — the number of people (and pets).
- Ages of the family members. Needs, wants, resources, and goals change throughout the life cycle.
- Marital status. There may be two married persons, a single, divorced or widowed head of household, or two adults who share responsibilities.
- Health may range from excellent to poor. Medical and dental expenses may range from very low to very high.
- Major payments already agreed upon. These may include rent, mortgage, cars, installment payments, etc.
- Effects of economic change, including unemployment, business losses or gains, inflation, deflation, or recession.
- Unexpected events. These could include a fire, theft, accident, lawsuit, a windfall, or other family event.
- Sources of income. These include earnings, unemployment compensation, rent, interest, dividends, child support, food stamps, medical assistance, fringe benefits, etc.

As you develop your plan, you will want to keep your family's unique characteristics in mind.

Family goals

Before you begin to divide up your income, you will want to think about your family goals. Your values will influence the goals you set for using your money, both individually and as a family. Your family probably has a number of goals that require money.

Talking over family goals for using money and trying to identify the ones that are most important to a family can help reach at least some of their goals. When children old enough to understand are included in discussing and choosing family goals for using money, they will be more cooperative in working together to achieve them.

Some goals may take a short time to achieve while others may require a longer time — maybe even several years. And family goals will change from time to time. So every now and then a family should review its goals and see if they are still important to family members.

Decision making

Decision making and problem solving are quite similar processes. Both are influenced by a family's values and goals and its special characteristics. Both seem to work better if as many family members as possible are involved in the process of decision making.

The process consists of the following steps:

- Identifying and defining the problem or goal.
- Collecting information and identifying alternatives.
- Weighing the alternatives, their advantages and disadvantages.
- Choosing the alternative which seems to best meet the family needs.
- Take action indicated by the choice.
- Evaluate the consequences of the decision.

Because the quality of the decision-making process has a real impact on the family's future, it is important to make the decisions that will work for the family, not against it — and to give the decision time to work. You will find the process of decision making helpful as your family develops its spending/saving plan.

Every day we make many decisions. How many have you made today? Were they major decisions that will affect your future and that of your family? How many decisions do you make each day that have to do with money?

Decisions — both good and bad — may greatly affect your ability to reach your goals and meet your lifestyle needs and wants.

Mixed Rations, To Daview Farm

and Reading fairs.

Gregory has also exhibited at the local fairs, placing third at Reading. Recently, the family purchased a granddaughter out of one of the Daview herd that the granddam was sold to a farm in Wisconsin several years ago.

"We've just been farmers all our life," said Luther. "I was raised on a dairy farm with my mom and dad." His wife, Teresa, was raised on a large beef farm. "Dairy farming is all I ever wanted to do. And we want to stay as a family operation."

Daview has no hired hands, and all the work is done by the family. "People don't understand difficulty," said Teresa. "Sometimes the most difficult part is the worrying and wondering. You try hard to have this cow healthy and the worrying puts the strain on you all the time to keep going to get this done, get that done. . . ."

Farming arduous

Dairy farming, despite the increases in technology, remains an arduous task.

Teresa said the family participated in a farm-city tour last November. "It was pretty interesting to hear how the people say that, 'Oh, you have milkers, now it's easy for you,' because they used to 'have to do it by hand and everything, and it's so easy for you now.' And it's not that easy, because you have to manage, you have to know what you're spending. When we make the silages, the corn silage and hay silage, we have to try to get all the crops in before it rains and everything and try to get the milking done and everything in one shot."

But the joys are many and simple sometimes. At the area fairs, Teresa said, "I enjoy seeing my kids out in the show ring showing the animals."

"I can say, I bred that animal, and it gives us pride," said Luther.

Hughes Receives National Recognition

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — "It's always nice to have an agent recognized for accomplishments like this," said Chet Hughes, Lancaster County Extension livestock agent, regarding his recently acquired National Achievement Award.

Hughes received the award at the recent 1990 National Association of County Agricultural Agents (NACAA) convention in Seattle, Washington.

According to Doyle Thomas, Susquehanna County extension director and state Awards Committee chairman, Hughes was honored for his "outstanding educational contributions to Pennsylvania agriculture."

Hughes was instrumental in providing leadership in the Lancaster County Sheep and Wool Growers Association, which he organized in 1986, and now numbers about 75. He promoted education as the association's main objective and conducted three shearing schools training 65 shepherds, according to Thomas.

The award is presented by the NACAA to one agent from each state who has less than 10 years of service.

Hughes began as a livestock agent at the Lancaster extension in 1982. He is a graduate of the Pennsylvania State University, where he received a bachelor of science degree in animal industries in 1977. After graduation, he joined the Penn State Extension as an assistant agent in Susquehanna County. Before moving to the Lancaster extension office, he was employed as a Northeast regional manager for the American Angus Association, based in St. Joseph, Mo.

Hughes, who was promoted from associate agent to county agent this year, is responsible for promoting beef, swine, and sheep in the 4-H, FFA, and adult education programs. He also coordinates a 250-member 4-H livestock and meats program and coaches nine state champion judging teams.

Mild Session Predicted For PFA Annual Meeting

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — An official with the Pennsylvania Farmer's Association (PFA) said he expects debate among county delegates to be mild when the association determines its 1991 policy at an upcoming annual meeting in Hershey.

Every year, during its annual meeting of county delegates, the PFA develops policy which serves to inform legislators as to the organization's stance on issues.

This year's 40th annual meeting is scheduled from Nov. 12 to Nov. 14 in the Hershey Lodge and Convention Center.

The state policy is a reflection of all policies adopted at the county level. Those policies are passed to the state level of the association to be reviewed, compared, compiled or eliminated.

Last week, to prepare policy recommendations for delegates to debate and vote upon, the PFA Policy Development Committee met in Harrisburg for three days of meetings.

John Bell, legislative counsel to the PFA, said that, in reviewing the policy recommendations that are to be considered, delegates have a full but not volatile agenda.

"I think the resolutions committee did a good job of consolidating numerous related issues into a single policy resolution and eliminated those resolutions already part of the (PFA) policy. That's why we (PD committee) met. We eliminated those county resolutions which already are law or part of PFA policy," Bell said.

"Those resolutions which are fully dealt with in PFA policy, the job is to consolidate (various recommendations) to present to the delegate body at the annual meeting," he said.

Bell has been representing PFA since 1981. He said that over the years, this year's issues could be compared to the weather — non-hostile.

"Generally speaking, it seems that some of the more difficult issues — the dairy issue, the wetlands issue — were dealt with last year," Bell said. "So this year, other than animal welfare and crop damage, should be a relatively mild year."

However, Bell said that, because of the lapse in time between county meetings and the annual meeting, issues which come to surface in the meantime — such as the Iraqui Crisis — can still be handled.

Wetlands

"There are a number of resloutions to be considered in the area of wetlands," he said. "However, there were a number of other (wetlands) resolutions last year which are already part of current policy."

Crop Damage

"In the area of crop damage, to summarize, our association is proposing that farmers have more convenient means available to them to shoot game causing crop damage than is available to them right now," he said.

Animal Welfare

"Also, in the ability of the animal welfare angencies to enforce the crimes code, there is a proposal to require greater training and education on animal husbandry paractices for those who would be authorized — private organization representatives who are authorized — to enforce crimes codes," he said.

Specifically, Bell said the PFA is looking for "greater training in police procedure and that they have training in animal husbandry practices."

Judicial Elections

"Another issue which has gotten some policy is in the area of statewide judicial offices and a proposal being offered which would require that state superior and commonwealth court offices be fulfilled through a regional election system rather than statewide elections," Bell said.

Farm Labor Law

According to Bell, seasonal labor is an issue of continued concern.

He said the PFA will be considering a policy recommendation "That the Pennsylvania Seasonal Farm Labor Act be ammended to provide greater consistency with federal law, and to make the law more understandable, and more consistently applicable in the hiring and use of seasonal laborers."

He said policy proposal also contains a recommendation that "... limits applicability of the act to those who are truly seasonal and to exclude full-time farm workers from any consideration under the act."

ATVs And Snowmobiles

Attempting to better be able to crack down on those who illegally operate All-Terrain-Vehicles (ATVs) and snowmobiles is the focus of yet another recommendation delegates are to consider.

"In the area of motor vehicles, there is proposed resolution which would require altering ATV and snowmobile registration numbers to be larger than those required now," Bell said. The reason is "... so that (the vehicles) are more easily identified; especially in cases where they are being used illegally on private property."

Widow's Tax

A subject that can generate discussion, but should not cause dissention among delegates is the Widow's Tax, according to Bell.

"Another issue, which right now is being considered in the legislature, is the repeal of the widow's tax," Bell said. The widow's tax is the taxing of property, not in both people's name, that is passed on to a surviving spouse.

"There is a resolution to repeal that tax (because it is) onerous on farm operations and farm families."

Hiller Reports Sales Up, Margins Down

SYRACUSE, NY — Agway's diversified businesses made major contributions to the overall financial strength of the cooperative during the past year, William A. Hiller, Agway president and chief executive officer, told several thousand farmer members attending the 26th annual meeting of the farm supply and food marketing cooperative in Syracuse, November 1-2.

Hiller said consolidated sales and revenues exceeded $3.6 billion, up $300 million over the previous year. Net margins from continuing operations were $8.1 million, down $3 million for the year.

Hiller reported that while farm supply sales increased, net margins on that portion of the business were disappointing. However, strong performances were turned in by feed, farm seed, farm systems and dairy and livestock supplies businesses.

The Agway leader noted that 1989-90 was a good year for the cooperative's internally managed businesses involving food, energy, and financial services.

Stockholders learned that Agway's Country Foods businesses had record sales and earnings. Agway Energy Products had an excellent year, adding home heating oil and farm power fuel customers through marketing efforts and acquisitions. Telmark, the Agway leasing company, enjoyed its fifth straight record year of sales and earnings. Agway Insurance had another year of improvement by directing its marketing focus at farm and rural communities.

Curtice Burns Foods, a major subsidiary that processes and markets regional brands of fruits and vegetables, had record sales but lower earnings resulting from lack of raw products because of poor growing weather in 1989. H.P. Hood, a major supplier of milk and other dairy products, increased sales but had heavy losses in its cheese businesses.

Hiller listed some factors that are changing agriculture in the Northeast--fewer and larger farms, increased milk production resulting from improved feeding and management, higher energy consumption, and reduced use of agricultural chemicals.

Commenting on higher energy costs, he quoted USDA economists, who predict that for every $5 per barrel increase in crude oil prices, farmers will spend $900 million more for fuel, fertilizer and pesticides. This will translate to increased consumer prices for food amounting to $2 billion for each $5 increase per barrel of crude oil.

"Higher energy costs will mean a tightening of the belt in farming operations and at Agway," he stated. "These increased costs, combined with predicted lower milk prices, will cause farmers and Agway to carefully monitor cash flow in the months ahead."

In regard to food safety, Hiller said that farmers are continuing a long-term trend in applying less chemicals to their fields and orchards. New, less toxic chemicals are used where protection is necessary to insure the quality and quantity of the food supply.

Noting that there are fewer dairy farms in the Northeast, the farm leader said, "other farmers see opportunities to expand their herds and acreage, thus spreading their management skills over additional productive units."

Hiller predicts substantial increase in milk production as "good dairy farmers are taking advantage of new equipment and technology, improved feeding practices, and other management procedures to produce milk efficiently."

Agway chairman Ralph H. Heffner, a Pine Grove, PA, dairyman and fruit grower, outlined the benefits of membership in a cooperative such as Agway.

He emphasized the financial strength of Agway which lets the cooperative speak with a united voice concerning state and federal legislation and regulations that affect agriculture.

"The existence of Agway brings discipline to the marketplace," he said. "As with most successful businesses, our goal is to offer a reliable source of good value, taking into account all aspects of the quality and prices of products and services."

The Agway chairman said farmers and the food industry must be concerned about issues involving the environment, animal rights activists, and reassuring consumers about the safety of the food supply.

"Misinformation about these issues is of great concern to me," Heffner stated. "Farmers are the best environmentalists in this nation and are deeply concerned about soil conservation, groundwater quality, and safe handling of farm chemicals."

The real issue of the animal rights movement is animal welfare, he said, emphasizing that "farmers care deeply for the animals that are part of their farming operation."

Heffner noted that citizens of the United States are beneficiaries of the best food system in the world. Farmers and the food industry must be constantly alert during production, processing, storage and delivery of food to insure its safety.

Six farmers were elected to the 18-member Agway board of directors during the two-day meeting. Other events included an address by Jack Parnell, U.S. Deputy Secretary of Agriculture.

A seminar on farm safety, a farm trade show and entertainment on Thursday evening by country singer and songwriter Tammy Wynette rounded out the two-day meeting.

Conservation Policy Must Reflect Farmer Needs

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — Conservation policies made without consideration of the impact on farmers could severely cripple agriculture, said Marlyn Jorgensen, chairman of the board of the American Soybean Association.

In an address before an international symposium on sustainable agriculture, Jorgensen encouraged policymakers to seriously consider the ramifications of policy on farmers and the nation's food supply.

"Most farmers are currently practicing sound management techniques," Jorgensen told the symposium audience. He called for additional production research to increase the efficiency of inputs of plant nutrients and plant protection chemicals while maintaining profitability.

Jorgensen stressed that sustainable agriculture should not restrict its focus to reduced inputs but take a "balanced, systematic approach at integrating all agricultural production practices which are economically and environmentally sound over both the short and long terms."

The symposium, titled "Growing into the 21st Century," was a joint project of the National Association of Conservation Districts, ICI Americas Inc., and the nation's major commodity groups, and included farmers, researchers, environmentalists, agribusiness leaders, and public officials.

"To suggest that farmers are not conscientious in their farming methods and have little concern for the environment is simply not true," Jorgensen said. "Farmers simply want to produce profitably for the domestic and international markets while maintaining environmental quality."

Congressman Traficant To Address PFU

BROOKSVILLE (Jefferson Co.) — Congressman James Traficant from Youngstown, Ohio will be the Keynote Speaker at the Pennsylvania Farmers Union (PFU) annual banquet on Thursday, November 8, 1990. The banquet at 7:00 p.m. will be preceded by a reception from 6:30 to 7:00 p.m. and is being held in conjunction with PFU's 19th Annual State Convention. This years convention will be held at the Days' Inn, Brookville (Jefferson County).

Congressman Traficant, a former Sheriff from Mahoning County, represents the 17th Congressional District. He was first elected as a Congressman in 1984 without the support of his party and managed to win with an 18,000 vote margin over the three term incumbent opponent. He conducted a low-budget grassroots campaign and was outspent nearly seven to one. He was re-elected by receiving more than 72% of the vote in 1986 and in 1988 Traficant again maintained an overwhelming majority.

Allen Deiter, President of Pennsylvania Farmers Union, will call the convention to order at 12:00 Noon on November 8. President Deiter said, "We are privileged to once again have Congressman Traficant address our convention". According to the PFU leader, Traficant is completing his third term as a member of the United States House of Representatives, and has compiled an outstanding record in support of our family farmers. President Deiter further stated that during the second session of the 101st Congress, Traficant scored better than a 90% voting record in support of the National Farmers Union position on key legislative issues.

Leland Swenson, President of National Farmers Union, from Denver Colorado, will be the guest speaker during Friday night's dinner. This event also begins at 7:00 p.m. Mr. Swenson is serving in his second term as NFU President. Because of his strong stand in support of family farmers, Mr. Swenson has become well known in the International agricultural communities as well as in the United States. Mr. Swenson also has taken a strong stand concerning fair trade agreements and the need to revitalize rural communities around the world.

Anyone wishing to attend either Thursday or Friday night's events may obtain tickets by calling PFU's Harrisburg office at 1-800-932-4629 or (717) 234-4311.

Nor does just one product. That's why when Woods introduced the world's first successful tractor powered rotary shredder back in 1947, they didn't rest on their laurels. Instead, they continued to apply outstanding engineering expertise producing equipment packed with performance, reliability and value. The results: a line-up of over 50 different products including mowers, cutters, rear scraper blades, backhoes and specialty machines. The best that money can buy.

Behind The Scenes With Somerset Auctioneer

BY GAY N. BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

ROCKWOOD (Somerset Co.) — Betty Lou Svonavec of Rockwood is an auctioneer. She has followed the lead of her father, Matt Luce, and her brother, Reed Luce, also from Rockwood.

At the age of eight years, Betty Lou says she accompanied her dad to auctions. She says he had given up a farm implement business in Fayette County to move with his wife, Marge, and two children, to a farm in Somerset County. He had owned his business for some 17 years.

Betty Lou says her dad had dreamed of one day being an auctioneer. With much encouragement from Marge, he finally went out and became one.

In those days you weren't required to take schooling and pass a state board examination to become licensed. However, Matt wanted the professional training and attended Reisch Auctioneers College in Iowa.

The family went with him to sales and the two youngsters were put to work, made responsible for small errands during the day. They delivered goods to the buyers, learned to spot bidders, and so forth, until they were experienced enough to cope with the more technical tasks such as clerking. Thus, the auctioneering virus sort of seeped into their blood.

"My mother was the encourager to all of us," says Betty Lou. She says her dad was more the type of parent to throw them in the water and make the swim.

The summer following her high school graduation in 1972, Betty Lou attended Reisch Auctioneers College, succeeding her brother Reed, who had also attended there a few years earlier.

A highly intense curriculum comprised the two-week course at Reisch. It was tough according to Betty Lou. She says she and Reed were mighty lucky to have had preparation for the grueling routine stemming from their background. "I had been going to sales as a teen and helping to clerk" she says. "So I knew what to expect." For the inexperienced newcomer, she says, the story was quite different.

Initially, they practices number runs, both ascending and descending, advancing to chants, then on to tongue twisters. Finally, they had to do taxes and real estate. This segment of training lasted a week, starting daily around 5 a.m., and lasting until midnight or 1 a.m. the following day.

During the second week of school they went to auctions. Then they served with apprenticeship for a year with a licensed auctioneer.

Still, when, as a licensed auctioneer, she did her first auction, Betty Lou recalls feeling, "a little displaced."

Oddly, rather than a test for oral competency, the state board for auctioneers is a totally written examination. Betty Lou says she has a "real beef" about the fact.

After graduating from the school, Betty Lou joined the family business called Luce and Svonavec.

She is married to David Svonavec. With their three children, they live on a farm with a barn dated 1886, and graced by a wonderful 17-room house. Betty Lou usually succeeds in cleaning it herself except when she gets bogged down or needs help to wash the 70 windows. Then she summons a willing neighbor to help.

"We use every room," she says. They have a finished attic that could sleep four persons, four bathrooms, and a room that Betty Lou and daughter, Heidi, 11, use as a craft room.

Son Lucas is in the third grade. He and Heidi attend St. Peter's Catholic School in Somerset. Gabriel, who is five, goes to the Messiah Nursery School. Betty Lou is a volunteer at the school.

A homey kitchen-dining area typically finds much social interaction around the circular table in their home. Tasteful decorating ideas emanate warmth and friendship. Peacock feathers are artfully arranged and brighten several corners with vivid color.

"This is more of the Old MacDonald's Farm," claims Betty Lou. Indeed, the resident livestock population is a fairly harmonious medley of three sheep, two horses, a rabbit, six peacocks and a cat or two. The sheepdog, despite the scraggley curtain of hair over his eyes, is perfectly and remarkably adept at finding his way around the place. With the absence of beef or dairy herds on the farm, David sells the hay made from the 111 acres.

Two cups of coffee and a dish of tempting Hershey Kisses were placed on the table. Betty Lou talked with a relaxed, laid back ease, lacing her conversation with humor. Her personality reflects a woman comfortable with her own identity.

She talks about family closeness; her own as well as David's. She says his mother, though a petite woman, birthed eight sons, but had no daughters. His father began a coal business years ago which is now owned by his sons. Working together is something both families have always done and continue to do.

During sales, Betty Lou says each auctioneer takes a turn with the microphone, usually rotating every hour. Then, hands switch pen and mike, and another voice fills the air with a melodious melange of numbers. Changing voices always seems to give the audience a boost, observes Betty Lou. She says they perk up and become more interested in the proceedings.

"One time I sold a bride's shoe at a wedding reception. That has to be the most unique thing I've ever done."

"What I would really like to do is auction off dates for one of these bachelor auctions." she says. "I think that would be fun." Bachelor auctions are done most often in cities to raise money for charity.

She recalls with delight "One of the funniest things was when we sold my dad's hat. He had laid it on a box and the box was sold." She says her dad nearly panicked. Folks know that Matt is rarely seen without his trademark, camel-colored, Stetson, perched atop his head. "I remember one Christmas we bought him three Stetsons in case he lost one." She relates how the resulting hat box scenario that year had them all laughing.

(Turn to Page B4)

Betty Lou takes her turn on the auctioneer's podium at a household sale. With her is father and partner, Matt Luce. The third partner, Reed Luce, her brother was taking his turn spotting bidders from the ground and delivering items to buyers.

Continual paperwork for Betty Lou is usually done here where she sits at her roll top desk.

Auctioneer Betty Lou Svonavec, when not selling, is spotting bidders or delivering their purchases.

Joyce Bupp

"We've got a problem."

The look that announcement generated from The Farmer was not one of surprise, but rather of the "NOW what?" variety. (Poor grammer aside, the phrase "we've got a problem" sees almost as daily use as the "what's to eat?" one.)

"There's water all over the back basement. The water tank has a leak and it's spraying right out the side."

He abandoned me temporarily as I handled the milking chores by myself and pondered the unwelcome possibility of having an indoor swimming pool by morning.

This particular problem was not completely unexpected. The old galvanized tank was probably close to a quarter-century old and had run millions of gallons of water through the house and barn plumbing systems. Rust spots had increasingly pockmarked the surface over the past few years, leaving it pitted and weakened from our acidic water.

Someday, something would bump against the deteriorating metal and we'd have a gusher. Or a leak would just start itself - as it just had. It would happen on a holiday, or a Sunday, or some evening after plumbing supply businesses were closed for the day - as it just had.

After about ten minutes of worry over imminent floating furniture and a drowned furnace, I saw our resident plumber returning.

"Well, it's permanently fixed," he grinned. "No more leak."

"Riiiight," was my skeptical answer. "What'd you do to it?"

"Propped one of your rubber gloves against it with a stick wedged against the sink."

Farmers' Quick Fix service strikes again.

Mastering the art of make-do is an accomplishment of many farmers I know. It's a skill honed by years of assorted equipment, electrical, plumbing and miscellaneous breakdowns at most inopportune times and carried out by use of such essentials as baling twine, duct tape, old electrical wires and pieces of retired innertubes.

Even rubber gloves and sticks.

The prop-it-shut system did indeed do the trick, buying adequate time to pick up and install a replacement tank and appropriate fittings. And, over the years, I've learned that sometimes making-do with what's at hand is often more sensible than an inconvenient and costly purchase of some specialized item - which doesn't even always work.

"Mom, can you get me some kind of window cleaner for the chopper?" asked the youngest a few weeks ago. He got a quick lesson in the best window cleaner Mom ever found a - little vinegar in clean, warm water, wiped off with clean newspaper.

Last week I spied him taking the glass cleaning a step farther. He swiped my sponge floor mop from the closet to get the water-vinegar cleaning solution up to the glass sides of the forage harvester cab.

For sometime now, some old, dirty pieces of cellophane tape stuck to the sides of my white refrigerator have been bugging me. They looked so dirty, but wouldn't peel loose, nor had I been able to scrape them off.

Peanut butter! Of course. It dissolves sticky price-tag residue, why not tape? And for the first time in months, that side of the refrigerator is minus the dirty tape and looks new again.

Last week, with a cold Canadian air mass whipping 'round the barn, it seemed appropriate to install the frames covered with plastic into the open windows of the weaned calves' pen. The first went smoothly into the opening - except for one stubborn corner.

I had just seen a hammer left somewhere. But where? Not in the office. Not in the calf barn. And the one for my house tool box had long ago gotten legs. Nearby lay a couple of pieces of broken cement block. A couple of whacks with a sturdy chuck and the stubborn corner fit nice and snug. Somewhere, a caveman ancestor - the original men of make-do - must have smiled smugly.

This is progress?

Somerset County Auctioneer

The conversation gets distracted as a snowy kitten slips under the table and circulates around the ankles resting there.

Obviously, the everyday affairs in the life of Betty Lou are balanced with laughter and affection. Her conversation is spicey, intelligent, extremely fun, very entertaining.

But the best thing about her is that, trim as she is, when the milk chocolates are disappearing, she never once said that tacky, overworked cliche' "There goes my diet." You have to enjoy being with that kind of person.

At the junior livestock sale during the county fair, Betty Lou was the sole female among the five auctioneers. Her attractive dark curls and light blue eyes brightened the arena. Opting to wear a longish skirt and matching shirt in vibrant color, fine black leather boots, she cut a classy looking figure. Unruffled by the normal habits of farm animals moving around the showring, she simply did her professional best, casting observant glances across the packed crowd in search of bidders until her own turn on the podium.

She says she finds the junior livestock sale very enjoyable and looks forward to it each year. However, she, Matt and Reed do a variety of sales.

"Most of the time it is total family with us." she says. Recently, even Heidi is getting involved in helping as a runner.

Preparing for a sale is an involved process. It starts with the pre-sale contract. She says the sellers are usually full of questions and confer with the auctioneers about everything. The sale is booked and everything in the house from basement to attic is examined. It is an inventory of all the owner's possessions. It is also a time-consuming aspect of the whole sale. Generally, it is done by Betty Lou and her mother. "We put it in order," she says, "Grouping categories for advertising. We start with the most expensive or treasured items. We do the advertising and include the cost in our fee. We line up the help, which takes a whole staff. There is one clerk, two cashiers, two runners, and three auctioneers."

Post sale time is equally important. "We're there until usually two hours after the sale. It takes time to match the money with the paperwork. We don't leave until the money and the paperwork match." There is also equipment to dismantle, she says.

Like good partners, David and Betty Lou help one another in their professions. He, with auctions, she, with land reclamation following the conclusion of a coal stripping operation. Land reclamation restores coal-stripped land to useful land.

Involved on one occasion was the planting of 28,000 trees and seeding the land. Of the three persons needed for the job, Betty Lou was to drop the young tree into the hole as the hole digging apparatus was propelled forward. To get the job done right, she had to sit in an ungainly position with her knees bent in an area near her ears. The third person followed, closing the holes around the tree roots.

February is the finest time of the year for land reclamation. The freezing and thawing of the ground help to firmly anchor the tender roots. It's been tired at all seasons and winter conditions can't be improved upon for the best planting results.

The Svonavec's big white house with its tall pillars stands graciously at the end of a country lane flanked on one side by a dark crisscross fence. On the lower side of it is a pretty pond with a floating gazebo which David built by using styrofoam material on the bottom.

With a shortfall of vacations during the last ten years, just two of the, actually, David and Betty Lou decided recently, to take their children on a Disney Cruise in waters off Florida. Betty Lou admitted to being just as excited about the trip as were the children.

MICROWAVE MINUTES

By JOYCE BATTCHER

Microwave cooking for kids is hot, and microwave ovens in the workplace have become invaluable equipment, according to a survey by the Campbell Microwave Institute. The study, conducted by Newman-Stein Inc., is based on personal interviews with more than 300 female heads of households who own microwave ovens.

Kids love microwaving—

About 86 percent of children of ages 6 through 17 use the microwave oven, while only 10 percent of kids under 6 use it, according to the study. Children use the microwave an average of about twice a day.

Children use the microwave equally for meals and snacks, the study showed. The most popular meal is lunch, followed by breakfast and dinner.

Most children microwave leftovers, popcorn and pizza. Frozen dinners and entrees, hot sandwiches, and soup are made 29 to 34 percent of the time.

Most women said their children like using the microwave "a lot." Only 10 percent of the moms surveyed said they were very "concerned" about their kids using the microwave. This concern was mostly for younger children. Reasons were: safety (burns/ not using potholders, rays from microwaves), overcooking the food, misusing the microwave (not reading directions), and putting wrong objects in the microwave.

My 8-year-old niece, Janine, likes to microwave. The other day she wanted to make "something for Daddy," so she came up with a quick and easy recipe using what was on hand. She told me that I could share her recipe, which she called Apple Bundles, with all of you. These terrific-tasting bundles or roll-ups are simple to make, with just a few ingredients and very little preparation time. Best of all, her bundles are delicious to eat. My family likes them served warm and eaten with a fork.

Janine's Apple Bundles

1 medium tart apple
2 tablespoons packed brown sugar
2 six-inch flour tortillas
2 dabs of margarine or butter
Cinnamon

Cut apple in fourths; remove the core and seeds. Chop apple (skin and all). Mix it with brown sugar in a small bowl. Put 1 tortilla on a microwavable dinner plate. Put half of the apple mixture in the center of the tortilla. Top with a dab of margarine and sprinkle with cinnamon. Roll up the tortilla and use a toothpick to hold it together. Move it to one side of the plate. Put the other tortilla on the plate. Top with remaining apple mixture and margarine. Sprinkle with cinnamon, roll up and fasten with a toothpick as with the first one. Cover the tortillas with a sheet of waxed paper. Microwave (High) 2 to 2½ minutes or until the apples are soft. Let stand about 5 minutes so the bundles are cool enough to eat. Serve warm. Makes 2 servings.

Each serving: 204 calories, 3g protein, 4g fat, 40g carbohydrate, 36mg sodium, 0 cholesterol.

Microwave ovens go to work—

Microwave ovens are now in more than 75 percent of all workplaces. Of the women surveyed in the CMI study who are employed, 75 percent have a microwave at work and most use it. Almost half of the women use their work microwave oven every day. On average, employees use the microwave at work 17 times per month.

Lunch is the most popular microwave meal of the workday. One quarter of the women surveyed said they microwave snacks. The foods they prepare most often at work are leftovers, soups, hot sandwiches, frozen dinners/entrees, popcorn and coffee.

My most common microwave lunches are about the same as those of the survey respondents — leftovers, soups and hot sandwiches.

I take leftovers or homemade soup in a microwave-safe container. The lid is microwave-safe too, so it can just be loosened for heating, rather than removed and replaced with a plastic wrap or waxed paper cover.

Main dishes and soups need a cover for the quickest heating. But before heating, loosen the lid and set it off-center on the container. Otherwise the lid forms a tight seal as the food heats, which can cause burns when you try to open the container. It also can warp the lid.

If you need a single-serve microwave lunch container for taking to work, shop carefully. Read labels. Look for containers that are for microwave cooking, so you can safely heat foods containing fat. (In microwave-heating-only containers, fat can warp or mar the dish, plus make it too hot to carry safely.) Look for lids that are microwave-safe, but fit tightly for leak-proof carrying to work.

I also like to take a sandwich to work. And the work microwave often makes my ordinary sandwich into something truly enjoyable — almost like I'm eating a restaurant specialty. Just adding a piece of cheese and a few seconds of microwaving perks up a simple sandwich. Or, toasting bread or using a bagel or firm whole-grain Kaiser roll means I can heat a sandwich with almost any filling without getting soggy bread.

Another anti-soggy bread hint that I always follow is to microwave my sandwich wrapped in a paper towel. Heating it in a plastic bag or wrapped in plastic holds in the steam and produces soggy bread.

A new sandwich booklet, "Club Butterball™'s Ultimate Guide to the Club," came just in time for my lunch planning this fall. It gives a guide in an easy-to-read chart for combining various luncheon meats with different fillings, breads, spreads and garnishes. Also included are four recipes and some lunch-packing hints. The booklet doesn't say anything about microwaving, but I've found I can adapt quite a few for microwave lunches. Zesty Bagelwich (below) is one of my favorites.

If you'd like to order this free booklet, send your name and address to Swift-Eckrich/Club Butterball, 4100 South Laflin, Chicago, IL 60609.

Zesty Bagelwich

1 onion, poppy seed or pumpernickel bagel, halved
½ tablespoon softened margarine or butter
½ teaspoon spicy brown mustard
½ teaspoon horseradish
2 slices (2 ounces) turkey pastrami
3 thin slices onion
Thin slice (about 1 ounce) Harvarti cheese

Spread cut edges of bagel with margarine, then with mustard and horseradish. Top bottom half with pastrami, onion slices and Harvarti cheese. Top with remaining bagel half. Wrap in a paper towel. Microwave (High) 45 to 60 seconds or until cheese barely starts to melt. Serve warm. Makes 1 sandwich.

To take to work: Place paper-towel-wrapped sandwich in a plastic sandwich or zipper bag. Keep sandwich cold until eating. Remove from bag before heating. Microwave time may be slightly longer than above.

Each sandwich: 382 calories, 23g protein, 12g fat, 33g carbohydrate, 1138mg sodium, 53mg cholesterol.

Lycoming County Dairy Princess Rebecca Fogleman sent some cheese facts and cheese teaser tips. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Fogleman of Muncy. Rebecca has one brother and three sisters and lives on a 250-acre dairy farm. She enjoys showing animals at the fair.

Cheese is the solid portion (curd) of milk separated from the liquid portion (whey) by heating and fermentation (addition of harmless cultures. It takes approximately 10 pounds for five quarts of milk to make one pound of cheese.

The appearance, texture and flavor of cheese are determined by the temperature at which it is aged, the length of time it is cured, and the enzymes that are added during the curing process.

Cheese is a source of many of the nutrients found in milk, such as calcium, protein, phosphorus, and vitamin B. The specific nutrient content of a cheese depends on the quality of milk used, the type of cheese manufactured, and the manufacturing process itself.

Natural cheese should be kept in its original wrapper or any wrapper that will create a barrier to moisture such as plastic wrap. Since cheese will pick up odors from other foods, be sure it is freshly rewrapped each time it is opened.

Cheese should always be refrigerated. It may be frozen if necessary, but frozen cheese is best used in cooking.

If cheese dries out, grate the hard pieces and use in cooking.

Stronger-flavored cheese, such as Bric or aged Brick should be kept in air-tight containers to prevent the strong flavors from being transferred to other foods.

Undesirable molds are those that develop on natural cheeses that are improperly wrapped. Certain cheese, such as Blue cheese, are mold-ripened, so the mold is not undesirable. Although most undesirable molds are harmless, some may produce toxins, be safe, discard a half-inch of cheese on all sides of visible molds.

Now that you know about cheese, go have a piece.

WHY WE NEED BARBARA HAFER FOR GOVERNOR

Along the road to Harrisburg, Barbara Hafer has always made her opinions known loud and clear. No fence straddling. No evasive answers. And she's committed to agriculture. All the way.

Here's how she stands on these important ag issues:

WETLANDS MESS. Casey's Department of Environmental Resources harasses farmers, threatens fines and court action and demands expensive engineering studies.

Hafer supports wetlands exemptions for farmers, and also favors tax credits where tillable land must be taken out of production.

"We can prevent any net loss of wetlands without running roughshod over landowners," she says.

RESEARCH CRISIS. Casey cut funds for ag research in 1990-91 budget by $1.5 million.

Says Hafer: "Research is the life's blood of Pennsylvania agriculture. It needs more state dollars for ag research, not less."

BOTTLING UP BOTTLE BILL. Casey says "no" to bottle bill. He opposed it in the 1986 elections. He still opposes it.

Says Hafer: "Everyone wins with a deposit law. Less litter for farmers. More recycled metal and glass for industry. A more beautiful Pennsylvania for all of us."

PRESERVING FARMLAND. Casey administration all but killed program this past spring by failing to develop the regulations required by law. It was Republican legislators who came to rescue.

Barbara Hafer is trained and ready to be Pennsylvania's next governor. Credentials include:

- Pennsylvania Auditor General.
- Two-term Allegheny county commissioner.
- President of Allegheny Prison Board.
- Founder and executive director of Allegheny Center for Victims of Violent Crimes.
- Registered and graduate nurse.

Says Hafer: "As governor, I will see that the agricultural department talks less and does more to preserve our prime farmland. And I will actively encourage counties to get more involved."

UNDER FUNDED SCHOOLS — Casey slashed funding for public schools and forced massive increases in local property taxes — the Bob Casey tax hike.

Says Hafer: "Education funding must keep pace with inflation and the needs of our citizens. Casey hasn't done that. I will."

WHAT FUTURE FARMERS? Casey eliminated all Future Farmer funds in his 1990-1991 budget. Republicans restored them.

Says Hafer: "It makes little sense to preserve farmland and then refuse to educate and support our future farmers."

DEER GLUT — Casey has taken a hands off approach to deer herd management of PA Game Commission despite staggering crop losses.

Says Hafer: "Deer are costing farmers big money. If deer are the wards of the Game Commission, then they must do something about it. Now."

ATTITUDE ADJUSTMENT — State agencies under Casey have ignored property rights in wetlands and other actions.

Says Hafer: "As governor, the state's Number One industry will receive more support from state government and its farmers more respect from DER, PennDOT, Game Commission and other agencies. Depend on it."

QUESTION — Jay Struble of State College requests the recipe for V8 tomato juice that had appeared in this column recently. He lost it.

ANSWER — A.L. Kramer asked if the recipe called strawberry jam was a mistake since it called for green tomatoes and not strawberries. The title is not a mistake. Although it calls for green tomatoes, it uses strawberry Jell-O, which provides the strawberry flavor. Other Jell-O flavors may be substituted. For those who missed the recipe from Doris Horton, Randolph, N.Y., here it is.

Strawberry Freezer Jam

5 cups green tomatoes, ground up
4 cups sugar
2 small packages strawberry Jell-O

Bring tomatoes and sugar to a boil and cook 15 minutes. Add Jell-O. Stir until dissolved. Pour into hot sterilized jars and seal. Place in refrigerator for 24 hours. Takes at least 24 hours to set. Store in freezer. Keeps 6 months to 1 year.

SWISS ONION SOUP

¼ cup butter
7 cups sliced onions
2 tablespoons flour
½ teaspoon salt
4 cups beef bouillon
4 cups milk
8 thick slices French bread, buttered, toasted
2 cups shredded Swiss cheese

Melt butter in 4-quart saucepan. Saute onions until tender, about 15 minutes. Stir in flour add salt; cook 1 minute, stirring constantly. Gradually stir in bouillon. Bring to a boil, reduce heat. Cover and simmer 30 to 40 minutes. Stir in milk. Heat to serving temperature. Do not boil. Preheat oven to 350 degrees. To serve, ladle soup into ovenproof mugs or bowls. Top each with 1 slice French bread and ¼ cup Swiss cheese. Bake 10 minutes or until cheese melts.

GRILLED SWISS APPLE SANDWICH

1 tablespoon butter, softened
2 slices apple honey wheat bread
1-ounce slice turkey ham
1 round slice apple, cored
1 slice Swiss cheese

Butter one side of each slice of bread. Place one slice of bread in skillet. Butter side down. Layer turkey ham, apple, and cheese. Top with remaining slice of bread, buttered side on top. Cook over medium heat, until golden brown. Turn and repeat. Remove from skillet. Serve immediately.

Cheese should be refrigerated promptly after purchase. Cured cheeses such as Cheddar, Monterey Jack, Muenster, Swiss and Brick will keep for several weeks when they are cold. The firmer the cheese, the longer it keeps.

Pa. Commodities Used To Woo Football Fans

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The sun shone down on the 1990 Homecoming Game at Penn State University as the Nittany Lions, then 0-2, hosted the Temple Owls, then 2-0. High spirits and the festive atmosphere and great foods served by the Pa Finest Tailgate were only the beginning of the great day.

"What perfect weather for a game, and with a feast like this, the fans will have lots to cheer about," noted Lolly Lesher, communications specialist for the Pa. Dairy Promotion Program. Eight commodity promotion organizations hosted this third annual event, that served over 5,000 people.

Lesher noted that "The purpose of the tailgate is to remind customers to use Pennsylvania grown, processed and manufactured foods. It is also a strong visual reminder of the importance and strength of Pa's agricultural industries. It was a great agricultural promotion, plus Penn State won, which made the event even better."

"Step up and try our Pa. fresh vegetables and this wonderful vegetable pizza," says Bill Troxell, executive director of the Pa. Vegetable Marketing and Research Program. "Pa has hoards of fresh vegetables that are perfect for tailgating menus." Mrs. Troxell is sporting the new PennFood Campaign logo on her apron. The logo is designed to help Pa. consumers identify Pa. foods. The theme for this year's Pa. Finest Tailgate was "Pennsylvania Agriculture...Quality from Our Home to Yours."

The Penn State Block and Bridle Club assisted the Pork Producers Council by preparing and serving about 100 pounds of pork tenderloin at the recent Pennsylvania Finest Tailgate.

Cook's Question

ANSWER — A reader from Somerset County requested a recipe for old-fashioned vinegar punch. Thanks to Carol Pretz, Middleburg, and to Kathy Van Nort, Columbia, for sending recipes.

Harvest Drink

1 cup vinegar
1 tablespoon molasses
4 tablespoons sugar
1½ quarts water
1 teaspoon ginger
Mix and serve cold.

Switchel or Poor Man's Lemonade

2 quarts water
¾ cup vinegar
½ cup sugar
1 teaspoon ginger
Mix together all ingredients. Chill. Contributor writes: Vinegar and sugar amounts can be altered to suit one's taste. Too much ginger burns the mouth and throat. In the summertime, this punch cuts down on a person sweating. Farmers often drink it when working in the field.

ANSWER — Mrs. Harry Rauck Sr. of Strasburg requested a recipe to make onion rings that stays good and crisp and does not get soft. Thanks to Shirley Van Scoyk of Honey Brook for sending the following recipe. Note: ordinarily we do not print recipes using alcoholic beverages. However, this was the only answer we received and cooking does eliminate the alcohol.

Perfect Onion Rings

Mix:
1 cup beer
1 cup flour
Dredge firm fresh onion rings in the batter. Deep fry. Drain on paper towels in warm oven. Salt lightly.

Environmental Concern Cycles Through Family

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

PALMYRA (Lebanon Co.) — For the second straight year, two brothers won first place in the state conservation poster contest.

Having two brothers win twice in a row has never happened before in the state poster competition. It will never happen again for these two; the eldest of the two will be too old to compete in the 1991 contest.

Tarin, 18, and his younger brother Tyson, 12, are the sons of Thomas and Beverly Bross, Palmyra.

The young men were each awarded a total of $80 through winnings at state and county levels for posters based on the slogan, "Earth Day Every Day. You Can Make The Difference."

The money is in the boys' bank accounts to be used for continuing education, they said.

Tarin's poster is a calendar with illustrations of people performing different forms of conservation practices, such as recycling bottles and cans, riding bicycle, etc.

Done in pen and ink, colored pencil and felt-tipped marker, Tarin's poster also depicts people being wasteful. These pictures are "X"-ed out.

The younger Bross's winning poster is made with charcoal, colored pencil and felt-tipped marker. It shows a large human hand weilding a sponge and wiping a clean path across a filth-masked globe.

There is a similarity in the brothers' artistic abilities.

The works of art were judged at the state level recently during an executive council meeting of the Pennsylvania Association of Conservation Districts (PACD).

The PACD is an organization of [illegible] the county conservation districts in the state.

In addition to final judging and presenting state-level winnings, the PACD also paid to have the posters set in a matte frame. The posters were then returned to the youth.

Black and white photos of the winning posters have been used in Lebanon County's Conservation District's newsletter, which is sent to all county school districts for use by students and teachers. Otherwise, the posters are not publicly displayed.

However, Tarin did some conservation-related artwork that did receive more public attention.

For Earth Day 1990, about 120 people in Lebanon County performed a 10-mile walk carrying a tie-dyed cloth banner Tarin made at home.

An awareness of conservation did not come naturally to Tarin, according to his own account. A freshman liberal arts student at Swarthmore College, Philadelphia, his hobbies include music and art. His outdoor activities are limited to hiking and bird watching.

Historically, many renowned environmentalists were hunters, fishermen and trappers.

Thomas and Beverly are not farmers. Outdoor recreation does not run heavily through the family. The parents' occupations do not require an environmental awareness.

Rather, the boys' understanding of conservation needs has been fostered through the efforts of local conservation district employees and high school teachers, they said.

Susan Bucks, who has been involved with special projects within the Palmyra School District, is one such teacher.

Since both Tarin and Tyson have been enrolled in the school district's "gifted program," they have come under the influence of Bucks, who has made environmental awareness part of the course's emphasis for some time.

Furthermore, for the past several years, the Palmyra district has fielded one of the top teams in the environmental olympics, a competition also offered through county conservation districts that eventually can lead to state- and national-level competitions.

"Through some of the environmental programs in the gifted program at Palmyra High School, I have an interest in environmental issues," Tarin said.

"Art, being one of the things I like to do, seemed like a good way to get involved."

In addition to the competitions, the gifted classes of students at Palmyra were also enrolled in a program to save the Chesapeake Bay.

Through the program, Tarin said he was able to talk to farmers directly and discuss conservation and learn about some of the problems they face, including contaminated water and wells, roadside garbage in fields, illegal dumping on their lands, and storm water run-off from neighbors.

The purpose of the poster "is to get people to care," Tarin said, "to build an awareness of how their own activities affect the environment."

He said that the message of the poster "is for people to consider the results of their actions and to be responsible for them."

However, Tarin said he was "pessimistic" that Americans and others could really take care of their environment.

"Just the fact that we know the problems, but it's hard to incorporate (solutions) because of the economic factor" has lead to Tarin's pessimism, he said.

Current efforts in regulating federal and state environmental programs and enforcing laws already in existence show "There's a lot of needless bureaucracy to get things done. And there's a lot of apathy. People don't really care," he said.

But he said he's not going to give up attempting to lessen apathy and that perhaps projects such as the poster contest can help.

It apparently has made a difference with his own family.

Younger brother Tyson said his involvement with the poster contest resulted from his older brother's interest.

For the second year in a row brothers Tyson, left, and Tarin Bross win the state environmental poster contest conducted by the Pennsylvania Association of Conservation Districts.

Additionally, Tyson said that school-related work further stimulated the desire to get involved in the competition.

Tyson is also enrolled in the district's gifted program. Through a class project the students were required to make a poster bearing the slogan of the 1990 conservation district poster contest.

Tyson actually made two posters — one for himself and one for school — and submitted the school project, "because I did a better job with it."

But not only has Tarin served to influence his younger brother, Beverly Bross said Tarin's involvement with conservation efforts has made a big change in the way the family behaves.

"We are (conservation-minded) through Tarin. He encouraged us to recycle," she said. "We save everything."

Since the local garbage hauler will not accepted separated refuse for recylcing, she makes monthly 20-minute (one-way), drives to a recycling center in Hummelstown. A family passenger van, not designed for the job, is pressed into service.

She said the local hauler has informed the Brosses that their services wouldn't include hauling separated recyclables until it becomes mandatory.

The Bross's oldest son, Thomas II, is a senior at Penn State University, pursuing a degree in business logistics. He may become involved with environmental awareness, his mother said. "It depends what company he ends up working for," she said.

Farmer Takes It All In Stride

From Cows To Television

Joyce Bupp
York Co. Correspondent

BRODBECKS (York Co.) — John Doll had never really planned to become a television performer.

But the Glen Rock R1 dairy farmer landed a featured role in a television commercial filmed last week in the scenic, rolling countryside of southwestern York County.

The commercial is a public service presentation of Foodwatch, a new outreach effort by the Agriculture Council of America. Foodwatch is a nationwide program of public education dedicated to ensuring and promoting a safe and abundant food supply for the nation.

Foodwatch will make its television debut at Thanksgiving, with John Doll, his 18-year-old grandson Jason Doll, and several of their Manheim Township neighbors among the cast of the public service spot paying tribute to America's food bounty.

At the urging of friends and neighbors, Doll was among a number of township residents who turned out at the Manheim Township building two weeks ago in response to a casting call.

"They told me they thought some of the Doll's should be there," says the quiet, soft-spoken dairyman, whose family has farmed in the area for several generations. "So we went."

Along with others who auditioned, Doll was photographed and interviewed by representatives of Richardson, Myers & Donofrio, Inc., the Baltimore-based agency handling the Foodwatch filming. A few days later, he received a call telling him he was the "perfect farmer" for the part, and to be ready for filming last Tuesday morning, by wearing his familiar bib overalls work outfit.

Original intent was to film Doll against the backdrop of the barn on the nearby Woodrow Berwager farm. Heavy rain altered plans to a move just inside the classic wooden structure, where he posed for some three-hours worth of shooting by the film crew.

Directors told Doll to return Wednesday in his suit, where he became part of about 30, some local residents, depicting an outdoor community Thanksgiving feast. Backdrop is Saint John's United Methodist Church, a picturesque white-painted wooden structure surrounded by fields of corn and alfalfa.

The feast-setting features folks of various ages and races sitting together at a food-laden table, children playing, even a few local dogs. Cast members braved chilly winds on the lawn of the hilltop church through repeated retakes of each scene. There are no speaking parts, since the action is set to the background music of the hymn "Amazing Grace."

Dairyman John Doll Sr. got a featured role in the Foodwatch spot, after casters picking him as a "perfect farmer" for their filming. The picturesque setting of Saint John's United Methodist Church, in the background, brought the film crew to the area.

Planners searched for about a week for the ideal location within a two-hour radius of Baltimore, according to creative director Ken Majka.

"We wanted green, and corn fields, and a white structure like a church or school," said Majka. "Every time we found what looked to be suitable, there would be high tension lines or radio transmission towers or a highway in the background. This location is great. The whole purpose is to show the great bounty of this country."

Nancy Genovese of the Baltimore agency noted that the casting call went out in the local Manheim Township area because "real characters" were preferred for the filming.

Shooting wrapped up last Friday and life in the quiet, rural neighborhood returned to the more mundane pursuits of milking cows and harvesting crops. But around Thanksgiving, the televisions of the area will be carefully watched as residents wait for a glimpse of their part in a nationwide salute to America's plenty.

Participants in the Foodwatch program, through ACA, encompass all segments of the food and fiber industry, producers, suppliers, processors and retailers.

Jason Doll, 18, food props in hand, waits for the director's "Action!" call.

Responding to instructions by the film director, cast members converge for yet another retake of the community Thanksgiving feast scene.

The abundance of delicious food - like this on hand for filming the Thanksgiving feast scene - is the focus of the Foodwatch public service spot filmed last week in York County.

MICROWAVES AND VITAMINS

Although we need vitamins in relatively small amounts, they are a very important component of the foods we eat and we could not live without them. Vitamins play a dynamic role in body processes. They take a part in the release of energy from foods, promote normal growth of different kinds of tissue, and are essential to the proper functioning of nerves and muscle.

Vitamins can be divided into two major groups based on whether they can be dissolved in water or fat. These are the fat-soluble and water-soluble vitamins. Vitamins of major concern during cooking are from the water-soluble family because those nutrients can leach out in cooking water and can also be easily destroyed by heat or air. These more vulnerable vitamins include ascorbic acid (vitamin C) which is found mostly in fruits and vegetables, and the B-vitamins such as thiamine (vitamin B1), riboflavin (vitamin B2), pantothenic acid (vitamin B3), and pyrodoxine (vitamin B6). These B-vitamins are found in meats, grains and their products.

Destruction of these vitamins during cooking stems from two major causes: prolonged heat, and too much cooking water. In microwave cooking the amount of time that food is exposed to heat is greatly reduced so there is considerably less heat destruction of these important vitamins. With many fresh vegetables that contain a great deal of water, such as corn and peas, no added water is needed in microwave cooking. This results in a greater retention of vitamins — especially vitamin C. However, when water is used in microwave cooking, the amount of liquid is so small that most all of it is absorbed during the cooking process. Also the amount of time the food is in contact with the water is decreased, because of the speed of microwave cooking. Therefore fruits and vegetables cooked in a microwave oven retain more of their nutrients.

Fruits and vegetables are among the most popular foods in a microwave kitchen. Along with the speed and ease of preparation, microwaved fruits and vegetables retain more of their natural flavor, crispness and color than when cooked conventionally. The difference in flavor and texture can convert indifferent vegetable eaters to enthusiasts.

To make the most of microwaved fruits and vegetables, start with high quality produce. There is no method of cooking fruits and vegetables that will improve on their quality. You also need to know that this time of year most of the commercially frozen fruits and vegetables contain more nutrients than shipped ones because they were picked and frozen at their peak of quality. The greater the time between picking and eating the greater the loss of nutrients.

Most of commercially frozen vegetables (10 ounce size) can be cooked in the box they were frozen in without adding any additional water. The cooking time is from 4 to 6 minutes depending on the vegetable and how well done your family likes vegetables. Consult a microwave cooking guide for detailed fruit and vegetable directions.

Although microwave cooking does not add to the nutritional quality of a particular food, it can help food retain its optimal nutrient potential. This means that, in most cases, microwave cooking does not decrease the level of vitamins, particularly the water-soluble vitamins, in foods any more than conventional methods do. In most cases, microwave cookery is actually superior in maintaining nutrient retention.

MAMMA Celebrates 45 Years Of Teamwork

ful past. It can tie an organization to old methods of operation. We must continually seek to change. And in 1990, change is more important that ever."

Previously, the schools were a good way to teach good nutrition, but today, teachers are required to include drug, alcohol and AIDS education.

"The American Heart Association, American Cancer Society, hospitals, and HMOs are all screaming for consumer attention for their nutrition message. Ten years ago none of this competition existed," Stanton said.

To meet the challenge of the changing consumer, misleading media messages, and the nutrition research that seems to draw new conclusions on a daily basis, the Dairy Council is taking a closer look at target markets.

Since Philadelphia is 40 percent black, the Council has produced a highly successful nutritional video with a contemporary message for the black community.

Dairy Princess Programs

Jan Harding, the Pennsylvania Dairy Princess program coordinator, said, "Farmers work far too hard to see dollars wasted." For that reason she stresses the importance of program participants working hard and spending money wisely for increased dairy sales.

Pennsylvania Dairy Princess Kristen Metzker told how she started out as a little girl dressed in a cow costume running around the mall to greet people and promote milk.

"For the last two years there had been no dairy princess in Blair County. The dairy promotional structure weakened."

This year, Metzker was crowned not only Blair County but also state dairy princess. Metzker stresses the importance of having a key person such as a dairy princess for more active promotions.

Susan Summers, a former dairy princess and spokesperson for the Maryland program, and Maryland Dairy Princess Stacey Guyton told of the success the Maryland program has in handing out milk and promotional materials at rest stops along major highways.

"Our most important promotionals are held before non-agricultural audiences," Summers said.

New Jersey Dairy Princess Noel Muller and Betty Jane Hunt, chairman, portrayed a humorous skit to tell about their state promotions.

Association's history

"MAMMA's roots go back to 1945 when local dairy farmers formed MAMMA's predecessor, the Atlantic Dairy Association," Norton said.

"These farmers realized that one of the keys to increasing the sale of milk was through advertising."

Norton told of the dairy farmers' struggle when five out of six farmers were in dairy.

In 1948, there were 8,527 fluid milk plants in the states. Today, that number has dwindled to 863 plants. Norton, said that the decline isn't necessarily positive.

"Dairy marketing is a challenging and ever-changing field that demands that MAMMA utilizes all of its resources in a multi-faceted, year-long campaign, that goes beyond advertising to influence the buying decisions of some 15 million consumers," he said.

MAMMA Staff

Pat Purcell, communications director; Julia Nardi, program director; Kelli Giglio, food service director and Bill Snitcher, public relations director told of previous and future efforts to increase sales of dairy products.

The 1991 Farm Show will have the mannequin Suzette hand out chocolate milk samples. Hershey Foods will donate more than 100,000 chocolate powder packets.

MAMMA tries to target places where the biggest crowds gather. Promotions of hot chocolate with real milk are scheduled at the Hershey Bears games, ski resorts, and minor league baseball games. Ice cream promotions are scheduled for Philadelphia's Every Day is Sundae, Inner Harbor, and Olde Towne Fair.

Snitcher told about new supermarket promotions planned for '91.

TV commercials

Mike Schmidt, who has been called the "Player of the Decade" will team up with Cal Ripken, the "Ironman of Baseball," for a new commercial in 1991.

A new 30-second TV spot will see long-time rivals Georgetown Hoyas Coach John Thompson and Villanova Wildcats basketball coach Rolli Massimino on the same team — the milk team.

Cynthia Kereluk, MAMMA's spokesperson and industry's fitness expert, will show '91 viewers how to turn their daily routine into a daily workout. The fourth edition

What would the dairy industry be without these people? From left: Mike Schmidt of the Phillies, Cynthia Kereluk, fitness educator, Grover Simpson of ADA, and Cal Ripken Jr. of the Orioles, agreed that they are proud to promote milk and the wholesome image it provides.

Representing the Dairy Council Jeanne Clarke, left, and Jan Stanton, right, spoke of the need to present contemporary messages that deal with nutritional controversies.

MAMMA Celebrates

of the popular MAMMA's Better Body Book will be distributed by February.

UDIA report

By teaming up with other companies to promote milk, the dairy industry makes bigger profits. Jerry McCann of UDIA reported that the cheeseburger promotion showed increased sales 79 percent in cheese, 6.7 increase in Heinz catsup, and 6.5 increase in Ore-Ida frozen potatoes.

In 1991, the cheeseburger promotion will carry a roundup Western theme.

McCann said, "Retailers use materials of high quality and those that promote a department quicker than one product."

The strategy is to "pull cheese out of the stores and into consumers' homes."

Commercials on Easter cows, Santa cows, and Thanksgiving cows will target holiday butter sales.

McCann said, "To survive and thrive in the retail industry, we must innovate, if we don't our competition will."

Trends point to developing "breakfast on the run" and smaller packaged food.

Kitty Klaus and Mareen Bergen of the National Dairy Promotion and Research Board reported that cream cheese sales turned from a loss to a high profit as a result of print and TV ads promoting recipes.

Baseball milk drinkers

Cal Ripken and Mike Schmidt told dinner guests that they are proud of their association with MAMMA.

Ripken said, "Milk has been better for me than I have been for you. He told of declining an offer of $75,000 to pose in underwear. He recalled, "I asked myself, what image do I want to portray?"

Milk gives a good wholesome image and I'm proud of what it has made me."

Mike Schmidt echoed those sentiments. He said that while many athletes are promoting questionable products, he is proud to be associated with a wholesome product like milk.

Currently, Schmidt, formerly third baseman for the Phillies, is pursuing an opportunity to work in a south Florida administrative position. He said, "I'll be glad to sell the product in Florida...and I'll continue to drink milk."

He hopes that his association with milk continues. He admitted that even he is intrigued by the milk commercials on which he appears.

"Everytime one comes on, I yell for my wife and kids to come watch it," he said.

Guests at the Garden Room reception enjoyed the food while meeting and getting autographs from Mike Schmidt, Cal Ripken, and Cynthia Kereluk.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

This fall our church is having a clothing drive. They will accept all-season clothing for men, women and children.

I have always saved nice dresses, coats, suits, skirts, trousers and blouses. In fact I had several garment bags full of these items. Being raised during the Depression, I've thought that someday my children might want for something for their children. This theory has proved wrong as all of them have much more than I ever had. Their children are well clothed and there is no need for an old warm snowsuit or sweater.

So with this thought in mind, I set about filling boxes and bags with clothes. There were many more girls' clothes than boys'. I would guess that after three boys wore the shirts and trousers, they were completely worn out. However, there were a few heavy winter jackets that were worn to school and then not relegated for barn work.

The various pieces certainly brought back memories. Several wool suits that were made for 4-H competition with matching gloves and hats were donated. Dresses that were worn for photo sessions and some that were given by friends are now gone. There was a black taffeta dress with tiny red roses that my husband bought for me in New York City many years ago. Some of these I couldn't part with — someone else will throw them away.

I've always been a saver just as my mother was in her day. She would say, "When you want something, who do you come to?" And I guess that is me too as I usually can find just the right size box for any occasion, the right color of thread stored in the closet, the proper length of shoe string, the correct tin container for dried beans or an old blanket for covering plants from frost. You get the idea.

The most accurate way to determine the amount of cheese to use in a recipe is by weight. Four ounces of any cheese equals one cup firmly packed shredded cheese. The same formula lets you know how much cheese to buy for use in a particular recipe.

Data Shows Pork Has Less Fat, Calories

DENVER Colo. — After an extensive, nationwide research project initiated two years ago, the pork industry has its answer — yes, fresh pork is significantly leaner than officially reported by USDA in its 1983 Handbook 8-10.

A University of Wisconsin-Madison study, released today at the annual meeting of the American Dietetic Association, showed that cooked, trimmed pork is 31 percent lower in fat, 17 percent lower in calories, and 10 percent lower in cholesterol than the comparable values for eight cuts reported in USDA Handbook 8-10, according to Dennis R. Buege, Ph.D., professor and meat specialist at the University of Wisconsin-Madison.

The external fat trim on pork cuts was also much less, with Buege finding an average of one-eighth of an inch compared to the one-fourth of an inch considered as standard when USDA's 1983 handbook was published.

According to Buege, the lower fat, cholesterol, and calorie averages were derived by direct comparison to eight comparable cuts currently listed by USDA: blade steaks, country style ribs, rib chops, loin chops, boneless loin chops, bon ess loin roasts, sirloin roasts, and tenderloin.

The new data also includes four new cuts: boneless rib roasts, boneless sirloin chops, back ribs, and ground pork.

The checkoff-funded study was made possible through a National Pork Board grant to the Pork Industry Group of the National Live Stock and Meat Board. The seven-member Pork Nutrient Composition Steering Committee, representing the major national pork producer organizations, oversaw the project, with the overall objective to update USDA Handbook 8-10 to reflect the fresh pork products available to consumers.

The major industry organizations that banded together for this effort were the National Pork Board, National Pork Producers Council, Pork Industry Group of the National Live Stock and Meat Board, and the National Pork Council Women.

"This is perhaps the most significant link in the chain towards our goal of making pork the meat of choice in the 21st century," said Hilman Schroeder, National Pork Board president. According to Hilman, this new data is essential if the industry wants to dispel common myths about pork, a major objective of the pork checkoff program.

"The USDA has overseen the University of Wisconsin-Madison study on the composition of pork since the research project began in 1988," said Sue Ann Ritchko, administrator of the USDA Human Nutrition Information Service. "This data will provide the foundation for updating USDA's Handbook 8-10 to be published in the spring of 1991. Handbook 8 is the definitive collection of information on the composition of all foods, including pork, in American diets."

Grassland FFA Attends Conference

Will It Be Plastic Or Paper?

SCRANTON (Lackawanna Co.) — After making numerous decisions about what foods to purchase, consumers are faced with one last decision before leaving the grocery store - plastic or paper? Is one better for the environment than the other? Each have their good points and bad points.

On the good side of plastic bags, they are light, sturdy and easy to carry because of the built in handles. They also prevent foods from leaking onto your car should an accident occur while driving home.

The bad points about plastic bags are they are not made of renewable petroleum resources. They can be recycled, but not as easily as glass, aluminum or paper. Part of the problem of recycling plastic stems from the fact that there are at least seven types. Although two plastic items may look similar, they could be made from different types of resins. This makes separating plastics for recycling difficult. The plastic industry has begun to address this problem by coding plastics with numbers to help consumers and recycling processors identify the type of resin used in production.

Another problem with plastic is that it can only be recycled once and must be recycled for non food use. For example, plastic soda bottles cannot be recycled into new bottles but they can be made into products like bathtubs, toys and trash cans.

Furthermore, plastic production and processing requires the use of toxic chemicals. Many of the plants that produce these chemicals also produce hazardous waste and pollute the air.

Plastic bags will decompose over time in the presence of light and air. However, approximately 95% of our garbage ends up in landfills where the garbage is buried beneath layers of soil making it difficult for air and light to reach the discarded items.

The good side of brown paper bags is that they are made from a renewable resource, trees. However, grocery bags must be made of 100% virgin paper, not recycled paper, since recycled paper is not strong enough to hold groceries.

Although they can be recycled, the production of paper bags pollutes the air and water with chemicals. Recycled paper creates less pollution and requires less energy than paper produced from virgin materials.

Paper bags are biodegradable; they will decompose over time when air is present.

WILSON YORKSHIRES
Yorkshire - Duroc - Large White
We are proud to have exhibited the 1st, 2nd and 4th top yielding Yorkshire carcass barrow at the recent Keystone International. Litter mate was 2nd at York County Carcass Contest. Also 2nd top cutting Duroc barrow at K.I.L.E.
The Yorkshires and Swedish pedigreed hogs: These animals offer leaness and lots of muscle. They are backed up by super productivity in Sweden. Crossed with American bloodlines which are heavy-boned, thick made productivity oriented. These boars have excellent nipple quality with a desire to breed.
We feel our Yorkshire and duroc boars have lots of good to offer the swine industry. If you sell grade and you yield, the Swedish hogs can help put money in your pocket. Scan figures by Mike Cherchuck. Real Time Ultrasound, most accurate scanning available today.
Boars $350-$550. Commercial open gilts $40 over market. Free delivery within a 10 mi. radius.

WHY GROW ANYTHING BUT THE BEST?

Your herd's potential is money in the bank — Protect your investment! Select your sires carefully. Call for results comparing Duroc with other breeds and hybreds. You can see how superior the Duroc Boar is in producing offspring that excel over all others in the areas of rapid growth, feed efficiency and performance! Even on a small scale, a quality Duroc Boar can improve your end product and profit margin.

THE FACTS SPEAK FOR THEMSELVES

Knowing the interest in production tested boars we offer days to 230 pounds and backfat figures on all our boars sold off the farm. We had the top indexing pen at the Maryland Boar Test and top indexing individual. This year we tested at the Ohio Boar Test, setting the all time record for days to 230 pounds at Ohio. The results were:

	GAIN	BF	LE	DAYS/230
4-5	2.64	.74★	6.09★	133
4-8	2.66	.82	6.03	134
4-10	2.87★	.83	5.45	129★

HEALTH INSURANCE

We work hard to make it easy for you. The best health insurance we can offer with our breeding stock is our sound management program along with a rigid vaccination and worming program. Disposable boots are used for visitors and all our deliveries to protect you and me. Our herd health program also includes validation and blood testing on a monthly basis. We are located in a pseudorabies-free county and bordered by pseudorabies-free state of Maryland.

GUARANTEED!

Visitors are always welcome to Holloway Durocs to inspect our stock and facilities; however, many times this may be inconvenient due to field work or other causes. We will custom select stock to meet your needs and deliver to your door at your convenience - SATISFACTION GUARANTEED! Our boars and gilts are guaranteed to work according to the code of fair practice.

FOCUS ON THE FUTURE

With the 21st century coming upon us, we strive to meet the demands of the future.

GROWTH, FEED EFFICIENCY ARE THE BASICS FOR MAXIMIZING PROFITABLE PORK PRODUCTION

The DUROC BOAR or gilt can get it done better and faster than any other breed or hybred. Quality is no compromise.

At HOLLOWAY DUROCS
"quality is our priority"

Sincerely,
Dave

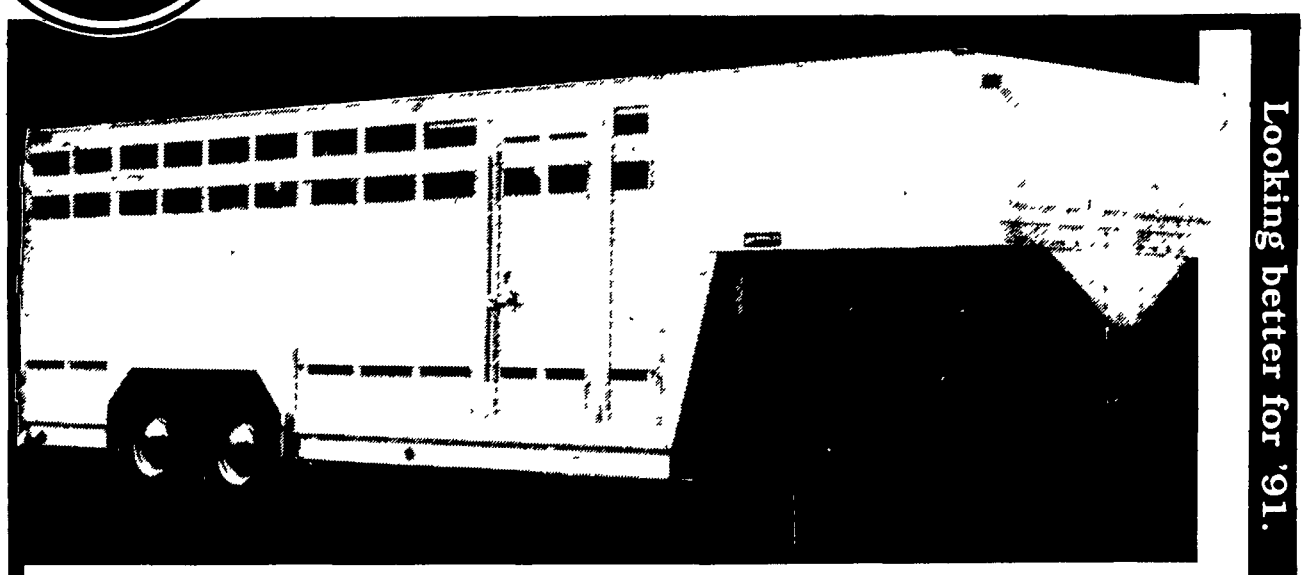
EBY BLUE BALL, PA

INTRODUCING THE REDESIGNED WRANGLER



OUR BEST VALUE TRAILER JUST GOT BETTER.

The new Wrangler. More aerodynamic. Better looking. And the strongest Wrangler yet. With top-quality components and rugged construction, this Wrangler is the best trailer value you can find.

- LIGHTWEIGHT- Eby stock trailers are 25-35% lighter than comparable steel trailers. Less weight means better fuel mileage or increased payload.
- MAINTENANCE- Eby aluminum trailers won't rust. Welding and painting can cost you dollars in down time and repairs.
- DURABILITY- Eby trailers are built tough. Quality components and 6061 alloy aluminum provide the ruggedness required in a livestock trailer.

Dutch Country Calf Sale Continues To Grow

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

SOUTH LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — A number of beef cattle enthusiasts who attended the recent third annual Berks County Cattlemen's Association's (BCCA) Dutch Country Calf Sale helped by increasing the quality of consignments and the amount paid for the fancy calves.

And for the first time, youth interested in beef cattle were provided an opportunity to purchase calves and to attend seminars by animal experts on providing medical care, grooming and feeding of beef cattle.

Held Oct. 27 at the Lebanon Area Fairgrounds, the calf sale is designed to allow buyers and consignors to do business in the south eastern part of the state.

A majority of the calves bought during the sale are used for showing. Over the last two years, a number of the calves purchased at the Dutch Country sale earned some top ribbons at fair competitions.

"I think we had nine total champions in the last two years' fair seasons," said Sheila Miller, president of BCCA and chairman of the Dutch Country sale. "We had about six grand champion and two reserve grand champions."

Prices this year ran higher than last year and attendence has doubled since the first year, Miller said. There were 75 buyers registered, she said.

Of the 20 calves offered for sale, the two heifer calves averaged $680 each, while the steer calves sold for an average $603.17. Altogether, the calves averaged $610.85 each.

Compared to last year, prices were up $63.85 a head on all calves. Steer prices were up $63.17 a head.

From the left, buyer Donald Walter stands behind the top selling heifer calf of the Dutch County Calf Sale, while Margueax Firestine attempts to trade her positioning stick for control of the halter with her sister Morgan.

Mike Messick, right, holds the halter of the top-selling steer calf of the Dutch Country Calf Sale. Buyer Donald Walter stands behind the calf.

Donald Walter, of Airville, York County, bought both the highest selling heifer calf and steer calf, each demanding an $860 price.

The heifer, a Polled Hereford, was consigned by Mike Firestine, of MAP Farm, of Womelsdorf.

The steer was consigned by Mike Messick of Lebanon. Per pound, the top steer averaged $1.87. All steers brought an average of $1.18 per pound.

The prices were higher than those for regular market calves, however, Miller said the prices were not out of line with the product.

"Steers at the sale were fancier calves and all had been approved TB-free, had been vaccinated for shipping fever," Miller said.

The addition of special youth program is also in line with BCCA's goal of educating people about beef cattle.

"We added the pre-sale youth conference this year which attracted a lot of young buyers who are looking for project animals," Miller said. "We not only gave them a place to come and get some good calves, but a place to come and get some education on how to grow a champion."

Dr. Lynn Sammons, a Willow Creek Animal Hostpial, talked to the youth about beef cattle health,

Boar Sale Draws Crowd

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — Pennsylvania's 13th Performance-tested Boar Sale drew a large crowd recently at the Ag Arena on the Penn State Campus. Among the many distinguished guests were Neal Buss, deputy secretary of agriculture, who opened the sale with well wishes from the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture.

The sale started off with very active bidding. The first pair of boars in the ring were the top-indexing boars over all breeds. Both Durocs were from a pen consigned from Kenneth Ketterer. First up was a top-performing boar selling for $1,000 to Roy Glenn Jamison of Chambersburg. Jamison's bid was the highest offered for a Duroc and ultimately the second highest over all breeds. The second highest indexing boar, from the same pen, brought the second highest price paid for a Duroc. James Mathis of Julian paid $800 to own this rapid-gaining boar. The seven Durocs sold averaged $558.

The top-selling Yorkshire boar was also the top-selling boar of the entire sale, with a price tag of $1,100. This Penn State University consigned boar was the selection of Hillside Acres of Lenhartsville. The second-highest selling Yorkshire was another boar from Penn State's pen and sold to Cedar Meadow Swine of Elverson for $950.

James Mathis of Julian bought two other very popular Yorkshires. He paid $875 for a boar from RPM Farms and $850 for a boar from Keith Bard. Nineteen Yorkshire boars posted a tremendous $613 breed-average sale price.

Four Landrace boars attained the top breed average of $650. The four pen mates were consigned by Larry and Norma Baum of Elizabethtown. Roy Glenn Jamison and James Mathis each paid $675 for their selection out of this consistent pen.

A pen of four Spotted boars consigned by Bourbon Springs Farm sold for an average of $431. Bernard Sperow of Martinsburg, WV, paid $525 for the top-indexing Spot boar and Allen Leonard of Roaring Branch paid $425 for the second-best performing spot.

Three featured Berkshires averaged $408 out of Russell Cornbower's pen, while the top two indexing Berkshires returned $525 and $400 from James Mathis and Heberlig Farm of Newburg.

Both of the Hampshire boars sold were from Todd Bennecoff's pen and went to James Blattenberger of Martinsburg for $350 and to Ed Eperthener of Mercer for $325.

Overall, the 39 boars sold tallied a very good average of $559. Harry Bachman of Annville again served as auctioneer while sale management was provided by Glenn Eberly, director of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture's Meat Animal Evaluation Center.

instructing them on the practical aspects of taking temperature and giving medications.

Susan Smith from Rolling Shade Polled Herefords gave a presentation on calf fitting and how to get a calf looking good for show ring.

Pete Crout, Lititz, and Clyde Brubaker, Berks County, both representatives with animal feed companies, gave non-promotional talks on basic feeding and nutritive requirements of calves.

According to Miller, while the majority of the youth attending the morning conference were not members of BCCA, within the past two years the organization began offering junior memberships and is seeking applicants.

The organization has been providing support for youth interested in showing beef cattle.

"Every year ... of any of the kids who buy a calf from our sale, we give them a discount on purchasing a calf from our next sale.

"Plus, the Berks cattlemen, if a youth takes one of our calves to the Farm Show, the (BCCA) will support the youth during the sale at the Farm Show," Miller said.

Just recently, the organization has agreed to spend up to $100 over the packer bid at the Frm Show livestock sale for cattle purchased through the BCCA sales.

For more information on the BCCA call Miller at (215) 589-5617.

National 4-H Events Lose Sponsors

RICHMOND, Va.— When youthful contestants from 19 states gathered here in late September for the 40th annual Eastern National 4-H Engineering Event, their adult advisors from the cooperative extension service at land-grant universities in those states were faced with decisions regarding the future.

Just before leaving for Richmond, Dr. Lee P. Grant, 4-H mechanical programs specialist for the University of Maryland Cooperative Extension Service, received a surprise telephone call and letter from Richard J. Sauer, president of National 4-H Council in Chevy Chase, MD.

Dated Sept. 21, the letter was addressed to Grant in his capacity as chairman of the management committee for the Eastern National 4-H Engineering Event.

It informed him that Amoco Foundation, Inc. and the Bridgestone/Firestone Trust Fund "do not plan to continue support of national 4-H engineering events beyond 1990." For the Richmond event, this support involved a financial commitment of approximately $30,000.

The letter also stated that beginning in October 1990, logistics, fundraising, and corporate liaison functions for certain national 4-H events currently supported by the National 4-H Council will be transferred to the committees which manage those events.

The events affected include:

- Eastern & Western National 4-H Engineering events
- Eastern & Western National 4-H Horse events
- North American Invitational 4-H Dairy Quiz Bowl Contest
- National 4-H Dairy Conference
- National 4-H Poultry and Egg Conference.

The letter further expressed the National 4-H Council's belief that committees now supervising these events can manage their activities without participation from the council.

K. Russell Weathers, vice president of the National 4-H Council, however, commented during a telephone interview that he hopes the committees will continue to consult with his organization on such matters as appropriate corporate sponsors.

He pointed out that management committees for some national 4-H events -- such as livestock, horticulture, and dairy cattle judging -- have operated on their own for many years with only consultation support from the National 4-H Council.

In response to the Sept. 21 letter, Grant reports that his committee voted to go ahead with the Eastern National 4-H Engineering Event for at least another year. By contrast, the management committee for the Western National 4-H Engineering Event voted to discontinue.

As a result, Grant and his group informally agreed that western states can send contestants to the eastern event next year, if those states pay travel and lodging expenses for their contestants. A precedent already exists for the bicycle contest, added to the eastern competition in 1983 but not a part of the western event this year.

Penn State Students Sponsor Cattle Sale

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The 36 Penn State undergraduates enrolled in the livestock merchandising course this fall had a unique opportunity to experience the real world of cattle sales by sponsoring the tri-annual Sale of Performance Graduates, held September 28 at the Penn State Beef and Sheep Center.

"Livestock merchandising is not a typical university class. Students are given an opportunity to operate a purebred beef sale," said Dr. Erskine Cash, Penn State professor of animal science and course instructor.

The cattle are from the Penn State herd, and proceeds from the sale are returned to a livestock improvement fund that helps support animal science programs. Buyers from 10 states came to this year's sale, which grossed $93,375. The sale averaged $2,918 on 32 lots.

McKean Brothers of Mercer, Pa., selected top-selling lot number one, PS Northern Elegant 119 420, for $9,000. The top-selling heifer calf went to Albermarle Farms of Charlottesville, Va., for $8,000, and the top-selling bull calf was purchased by Laflin Ranch of Olsburg, Kan., for $3,500.

To prepare for the sale, students attend classes once a week throughout the semester and spend a minimum of three hours each week prior to the sale assisting beef herdsman Donnie Nichols and his assistant, Eric Lorenz, in pre-sale activities.

"I've learned as much about working with people as I have about working with animals," said Kelly Shearer, a junior majoring in dairy and animal science. Shearer came to Penn State from Lancaster, Pa. "Though we are surrounded by farms in Lancaster, I had very little exposure to animals or the people that work with them."

Seniors Scott Snyder and Karen Rabenold already were very familiar with the livestock and dairy industries, but they found the class valuable. For Snyder, the course provides a solid overview of the various techniques involved in marketing quality cattle.

"We were able to interact with a number of industry people through class visits and the sale itself. It helps when prospective employers get the chance to see us in action," said Rabenold.

Thirty-six Penn State undergraduates enrolled in the livestock merchandising course this fall had a unique opportunity to experience the world of cattle sales at the tri-annual Sale of Performance Graduates recently at the Penn State Beef and Sheep Center.

The curriculum in Penn State's dairy and animal science department offers students many opportunities to gain a broad range of practical experiences, from computerized feed rationing to body condition scoring and herd health examinations.

"But livestock merchandising provides one of the most complete real-life experiences," said Cash. "Many of the department's 160 undergraduates, as well as students from other disciplines and colleges, find our environment particularly attractive."

Hydro Combine Features More H.P.

MOLINE, Ill. — The new John Deere 4435 hydrostatic-drive combine has 21 more horsepower than the 4435 gear-drive model it replaces and provides added ease of operation for matching ground speed to field and crop conditions.

The 4435 Hydro retails several features from its predecessor including a 24-in. diameter cylinder, dual-range cylinder drive, a 17.5-hp feeder house reverser, and an operator presence safety switch.

The machine is powered by a 138-hp, six-cylinder, 359-cubic inch turbocharged John Deere diesel. The engine's high torque rise provides reserve power to handle heavy crop conditions and rough or hilly terrain.

The variable hydrostatic ground drive is teamed with a four-speed transmission, a combination that enables the operator to have smooth, precise control of a full range of ground speeds to match harvesting conditions.

The 4435 Hydro features a 24-inch diameter x 41-inch wide threshing cylinder and a 23.2 inch concave that provide a large threshing area with three rasp bars always in contact with the concave for complete threshing. The design also permits slower cylinder speeds for high grain quality.

Cylinder speed (low range 158 to 450 rpm and high range 400 to 1,100 rpm) is hydraulically controlled from the cab to allow quick adjustment of the threshing speed to match crop conditions. The dual-range Posi-Torq® cylinder drive automatically tensions the drive belt when sudden peak loads occur. This prevents belt slippage to help maintain full engine power to the cylinder and prevent plugging. Belt wear is also reduced.

A 41-inch wide feeder house opening permits smooth, even crop flow to the cylinder. The top-driven, three-chain conveyor has steel "T" slats which have outer serrated edges for aggressive feeding action.

The feeder house reverser enables the operator to clear header or feeder house plugs safely from the cab.

For added safety, the operator seat must be occupied for the header to operate. A seat safety switch activates an interlock with the header drive. The system shuts down the header when the operator leaves the seat.

Each of the four 147.5-inch straw walkers has five steps and a 6-inch throw that separate the remaining grain from the residue. An optional stationary straw chopper has a hinged stainless steel deflector that can be positioned for spreading chopped residue or windrowing unchopped residue.

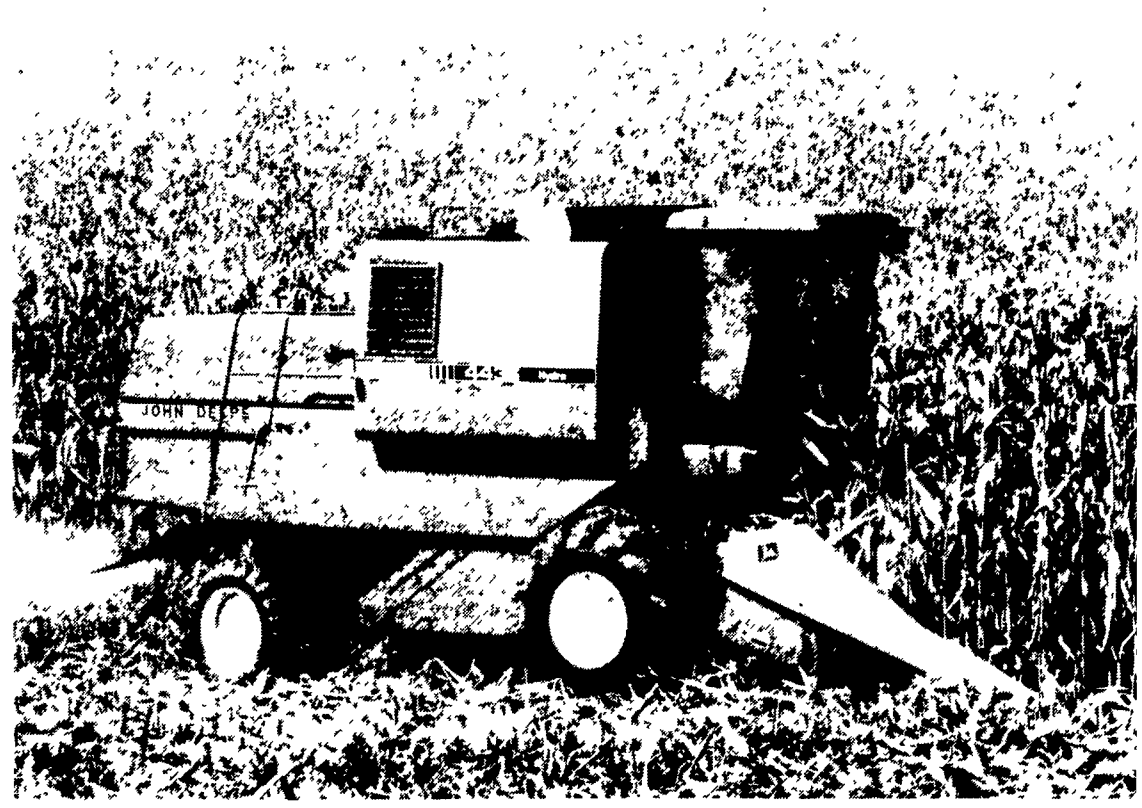
The opposed-motion cleaning system provides 5285 square inches of capacity for maximum grain cleaning. Removable chaffer sections increase capacity on slopes. The scroll-type, variable-speed cleaning fan delivers air to the front of the chaffer and sieve, where loads are heaviest, to help ensure a clean grain sample. Fan speed is adjustable from the cab and ranges from 450 to 1,200 rpm to match crop conditions.

The unloading auger pivots 110 degrees for a clear view of the unloading operation. The auger can empty the 125-bushel grain tank in about 90 seconds.

The 4435 Hydro features a Quick-Tatch® header hookup system with spring-loaded locking pins that permits fast attachment and removal of all 900 series platforms up to 18 foot, all four-row narrow and wide 40 series corn heads and 50A series row-crop heads, and 12- and 14-foot belt pickup platforms.

The cab is sealed and suspension-mounted for quiet (80 dB(A)) operation. air conditioning and heating are standard, and the cloth-covered seat is fully adjustable for operator height and weight, backrest inclination, and fore/aft position.

Additional information is available from John Deere agricultural equipment dealers and Deere & Company, Moline, Illinois.



The 128-HP John Deere 4435 Hydro Combine features a variable hydrostatic ground drive coupled with a four-speed transmission. This combination provides smooth, precise control of a full range of ground speeds to match harvesting conditions.

Systems Make Better Pig Housings

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — If pigs could talk, they might ask farmers for more elbow room in their living quarters.

"Research is showing that pigs have a behavioral need to turn around and that conventional stalls may be too small to meet their requirements," said Dr. Kenneth B. Kephart, assistant professor of animal science in Penn State's College of Agriculture.

"To improve living conditions for pigs, animal scientists are studying ways to modify existing housing systems. These changes in equipment and systems for housing sows are aimed at providing greater mobility, while at the same time responding to the concerns expressed by members of the animal rights and animal welfare movement."

Said Kephart, "We're beginning to look at animals from the aspect of environmental physiology in order to try to find out not only what it takes to produce the most pounds of meat or milk, but also what an animal is thinking and feeling. We still have a lot to learn."

Housing innovations in the swine industry include the new "hill-side" pen, a special design for farrowing (where sows give birth and raise their litters). The pen measures 6 feet by 7 feet, with a separate area for the piglets. The pen is larger than traditional farrowing crates and provides room for a sow to turn around. The hill-side pen also has a unique sloping floor, with a slope of about one inch per foot.

It differs from the traditional farrowing crate, for example, in both size and floor design, Kephart said. The following crate rests on a flat surface and is 2 feet by 7 feet, with an 18-inch area on either side for the baby pigs. Sows can stand up and lie down, but not turn around in this pen. They spend about four weeks in the crate, until their offspring are weaned.

The survival rate for piglets is comparable for both housing systems. With other types of housing, such as pasture farrowing and conventional pens, the survival rate drops due to crushing. Sows, weighing in excess of 500 pounds, can unknowingly crush their offspring.

The farrowing crate and hill-side pen both protect piglets from accidental death, while allowing them to be nursed by the sow.

NFU Upset With Dairy Board Position On BST

INDIANAPOLIS — Two dairy farmer's groups are at odds with the National Dairy Board over support of the controversial milk producing hormone, Bovine Somatotropin (BST).

In a recent news release, leaders of the National Farmers' Union (NFU) say they are "deeply disappointed" with the National Dairy Promotion and Research Board's decision to conduct an information program on bovine growth hormones (BST).

Meanwhile, the dairy board says its hands are legally tied and that opposition groups within the dairy industry, including the NFU, should accept the safety of milk produced through the use of the hormones and to keep opposition arguments confined to economic and social issues.

Bovine growth hormones are a controversial issue in the dairy industry. The hormones are naturally occuring and stimulate milk production in cows.

Bovine Somatotropin (BST), a bovine growth hormone, is created through biotechnology, similar to the production of insulin. The injectable hormone is proposed for use in the U.S. dairy industry.

The use of injectable BST artificially lengthens the peak production time during a cow's lactation. The end result is an average increase of about 10 pounds of milk a day during the first two weeks of BST treatment. The exact percentage of gain in milk per cow, depends on the condition of the cow and the normal production levels.

While BST is still pending total approval by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, Mexico recently approved the use of the hormone in its dairy animals.

The U.S. FDA has approved BST-manufactured milk for human consumption, for two reasons: as a protein, BST is destroyed by digestive acids; and BST is already present in milk at levels above or equal to those found in milk produced under the influence of BST injections.

Ever since BST was introduced for testing on herds, objections to its use have ranged from those concerned with a possible glut of milk that would destabilize milk prices, to a decrease in consumer demand resulting from distrust of technology.

The national dairy board some months ago, announced that it was going to conduct an information program on the safety of BST produced milk, so that consumers and others could have easy access to free information.

During the national dairy board's meeting last week, NFU representatives and representatives from another dairy organization petitioned the board to reconsider its decision to conduct the information and education campaign on the safety of BST milk.

In its statement, NFU claims the reason it has made a request to cancel the national campaign is that, since dairy farmers are divided on the ethics of using BST and dairy farmers pay for the board's budget, dairy farmers who object to the use of BST should not have to pay for the campaign.

In a news release, NFU states that "those dairy producers who oppose BGH (BST) use should not be forced to pay for a campaign which could have the affect (sic) of promoting the product."

In the statement, Julie Bleyhl, with the Minnesota Farmers Union, said, "Our primary concern with the use of BGH is economic. Many famers feel BGH use will raise milk surpluses and cut their incomes. Why should those people have to pay for a campaign like this?"

Harold Wright, president of the Indiana Farmers Union and chairman of the NFU executive committee, said, "The real issue surrounding your (the dairy board's) proposal is not whether or not the milk is safe, but whether or not the public thinks it's safe. The public's perception is critical."

According to the NFU release, dairy board officials said they are also concerned about public perception, but that their information campaign will help eliminate the possibility of consumer rejection of dairy products, if BST is approved for use in the United States.

In a seperate news release on the meeting, the dairy board reports the events somewhat differently.

According to the dairy board, during the meeting, two groups presented two proposals "to abandon or change the crisis management program dealing with BST and milk safety."

According a dairy board statement, both the NFU and the Minnesota Citizens Organizations Acting Together (COACT) worked in harmony in present two major proposals.

The proposal by COACT has five requests, according to the dairy board statement.

COACT wants the dairy board to:

- Develop a campaign to promote naturally-produced milk and dairy products as being free of synthetic bovine growth hormone (BGH or BST).
- Reverse its previous decision and refuse to spend the more than $1 million of dairy farmers' money allocated or any other funds to defend, and/or promote, milk from cows treated with BST.
- Oppose the use of the "Real Seal" (a dairy promotion logo and symbol) on milk or dairy products from cows treated with BST.
- Request the FDA to prohibit the commercial sale of milk from BST test herds.
- Request the FDA to require the manufacturers of BST to develop a test to distinguish between naturally-produced milk and the milk from cows treated with BST.

According to the dairy board, the NFU also made specific requests in an earlier letter to the board, asking that the board:

- Hold a special referendum among dairy producers on the question of using promotion funds on anything related to BST.
- Allocate funds for the development of independent tests on the safety of BST for animal and human health.
- Consider developing a test to detect BST in milk.
- Conduct a promotion program for BST-free milk.
- Do a promotion program to educate consumers on the value of the dairy stabilization program to a safe, nutritious and affordable supply of dairy products.

According to the dairy board, it is specifically prohibited by law to take such action as is requested by both organizations.

In its new release, the dairy board reports,

"The National Dairy Promotion and Research Board was established by Congress via the Dairy and Tobacco Adjustment Act of 1983. The purpose of the Act is, 'To stabilize the supply and demand for dairy products . . . '. The Board's charter, as spelled out in the Act, is to ' . . . carry out a coordinated program of promotion designed to strengthen the dairy industry's position in the marketplace and to maintain and expand domestic and foreign markets for uses for fluid milk and dairy products produced in the United States.'

"The Act specifically states, 'No such advertising and promotion program shall make use of unfair or deceptive acts or practices with respect to the quality, value, or use of an competing product.' The Act further states, 'The order shall prohibit any funds collected by the Board under the order from being used in any manner for the purpose of influencing governmental policy or action . . . '"

According to the dairy board, "It was within the confines of the Dairy and Tobacco Adjustment Act that the NDB decided to participate in the Dairy Industry Coalition with the National Milk Products Federation and undertake a crisis managment program to protect the dairy franchise.

"It should be noted that this decision was not made without debate.

Tour Shows Ag Chem Use, Safety

GAIL STROCK
Mifflin Co. Correspondent

BELLEVILLE (Mifflin Co.) — An estimated one-third of the world's food supply would be lost each year if farm chemicals would not be used. This would be enough food to feed the combined populations of China and India.

Interesting facts such as these were heard by those attending a public relations event prepared by the Ag Committee of the Chamber of Commerce and the Mifflin County Farmers Association, hosted by Union Mills, a division of Chemgro.

The purpose of the event, spurred by the Alar scare two years ago, was to help the public see and understand that pesticides can be used and handled safely.

To illustrate this, Don Hartzler, manager of Union Mills, conducted a tour of the facilities, whose business is the custom application of fertilizer, seeds, and ag chemicals.

Hartzler introduced a new term, "Farmaceuticals," or ag chemicals. Farmaceuticals primarily "control many of the estimated 10,000 species of harmful insects, more than 1,500 different weeds, and about 1,500 kinds of nematodes that cause damage to crop plants," he said. These chemicals can be compared to the use of pharmaceuticals for humans, combating germs, viruses, ticks, mites, lice, etc.

The tour began at the dry fertilizer ingredients warehouse. Raw materials such as potash, phosphorus, and nitrogen sources, are blended to anaylsis to sell in bulk or bags. Conveyor belts move ingredients to mixers, then to the air packer where bags with valves are filled and sealed. With this system, the actual fertilizer has little opportunity to come in direct contact with employees. "We are required by law to state the analysis," said Hartzler. The state does probe the bags to insure proper analysis."

Hartzler discussed the importance of soil samples before moving on to the liquid fertilizer storage area. "We're diking all of the facilities, so if any of the fertilizer tanks rupture, they're over concrete and we can recover any leaks. All of the ag chemical tanks are diked, now, we're doing the fertilizer tanks," Hartzler said.

In the liquid fertilizer and ag chemical mixing room, everything is piped in, mixed, then piped out to bottom-loaded trucks, offering little exposure to employees.

Hartzler spoke of a new generation of pesticides. "In the past we were working with pints, quarts, and gallons/acre. The new generation of chemicals, sulfonated urea forms, are applied in ounces - 13 ounces and 1/5 ounces per acre. This amount helps with container disposal and ground water pollution since only a minute amount is put on the soil surface. These particular chemicals will attack a particular enzyme in a plant. This enzyme is not found in human beings, making them safe to handle. These are applied only when a certain weed is growing, not applied over all, hoping they will kill whatever comes up. It's an integrated pest management way of dealing with weed control. More and more chemicals are coming out in this form."

It was only when it became obvious that the Dairy Coalition was the only group prepared to protect sales of dairy products and, thus, producers incomes, if and when, BST were approved, that the decision was made to fund a crisis managment program.

"The Board felt this action was consistent with its mandate to 'stabilize' and 'maintain' sales of milk and dairy products, especially in light of threatened food scare tactics aimed at products using milk from BST supplemented cows."

The dairy board's statement also contains references to a survey it commissioned to find out the effects of food scare publicity on consumer confidence in dairy products. According to the board, the survey concluded that two out of five consumers would reduce milk or dairy products purchases.

According to the board, this means that dairy farmers and dairy products are being forced into the middle of the BST controversy and the dairy board must act to preserve consumer confidence.

Additionally, the dairy board said it is not its responsibility, nor is it legally authorized to dispute or refute the FDA's claim that BST-produced milk poses no threat for human consumption.

According to Al Sherman, chairman of the dairy board's public relations committee, "Frank discussion with representatives of the National Farmers Union lead to a better understanding of each group's position. NFU's arguments are economic and social and NFU has refrained from the use of food scare tactics."

New Activities Featured At Bucks Fair Sheep Show

DOYLESTOWN (Bucks Co.) — Several new events were introduced at this year's Buck County Middletown Grange Fair sheep show, attracting a large number of spectators, according to show officials.

According to April DeGeorge, county extension agent, a new 4-H and open blocking contest was added to the list of competition, as was a sheep-decorating competition, similar to a calf-dressing contest.

In addition to the new classes of competitions, wool and shearing demonstrations were held.

The results, according to DeGeorge, was "spectators gathering to watch the sheep activities . . . "

Overall, there were 116 entries judged in the fair sheep show, with a number of those being 4-H members who are involved in a sheep project.

Cheryl Fairbairn, a Chester County extension agent, judged the open and 4-H show. Peter Brummer, of Port Royal, judged fitting and showmanship competitions.

COMPARE THESE FEATURES AND OPTIONS

Simple hydraulics allows one valve to operate the lift and stabilizer cylinders. Center plumbing means less hose length and easier coupling.

The basic box is heavy-duty steel welded seams, and reinforced for even more strength.

Stabilizer cylinders hydraulically lock on to axle to hold wagon rigid during dump cycle.

Galvanized roof features vent insert for straight-through air flow.

The model 700 dump wagon is designed for years of trouble free service. The hydraulic system with a cable assist is designed to unload large loads of up to 20 000 lbs quickly and efficiently even if the load is not distributed evenly

RICHARDTON

Make your operation safer • Use year round • Variety of crops • All field conditions • Operate in wet and muddy

When Buying A NEW COMBINE

DON'T OVERLOOK THE CASE IH AXIAL FLOW ADVANTAGE

With the SINGLE AXIAL FLOW ROTOR you get:

1) INCREASED PRODUCTION by the ability to start combining earlier in the day, and to keep combining later into the night.
2) BETTER GRAIN QUALITY because the ROTOR'S threshing action is much gentler than a conventional combine's cylinder.
3) LESS MAINTENANCE because there is NO strawwalker system to repair.

DON'T OVERLOOK THE HOOBER SERVICE ADVANTAGE

HOOBER'S experienced service people

With HOOBER's experienced SERVICE PEOPLE you get:

1) Fulltime Combine mechanics who work on combines year round, not just when you have a problem.
2) PEOPLE WHO CARE about your problems and want to fix them fast. so that you can get back to the field.
3) RECONDITIONED COMPONENTS which are not for sale, but are strictly reserved for use by the SERVICE DEPARTMENT to insert in customers machines who have major component failures.

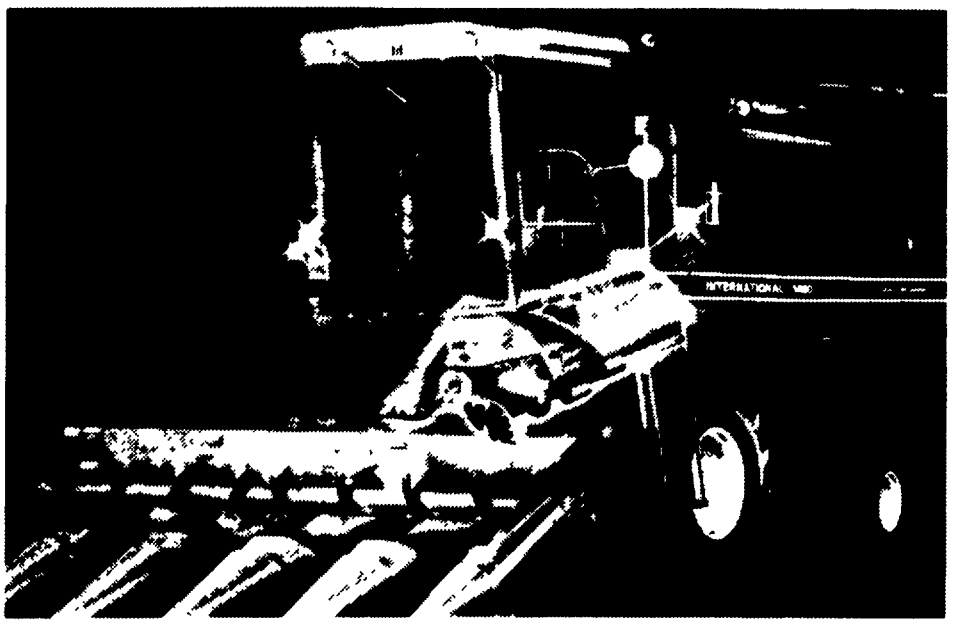
YOU DON'T NEED TO BE A MATHEMATICIAN TO LEARN

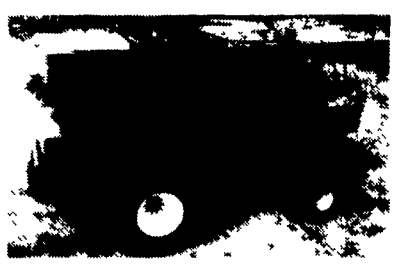


THE 3 LAWS OF HOOBER RECONDITIONED AXIAL-FLOW COMBINES. YOU ONLY NEED TO TRY ONE.

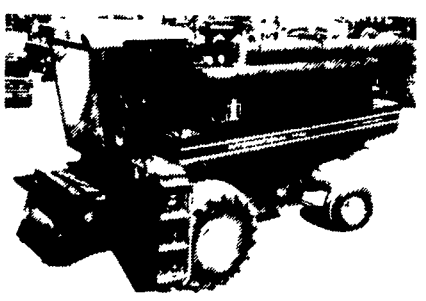
1st LAW OF HOOBER RECONDITIONED AXIAL-FLOW COMBINES

TEN (10) YEARS OLD IS NOT EQUAL TO (≠) WORN OUT

Because of the simple design of the CASE IH Axial Flow Combines, they can be reconditioned by Hoober's expert combine mechanics to like new condition, so they will provide 2nd and 3rd owners years of satisfactory and profitable operation.

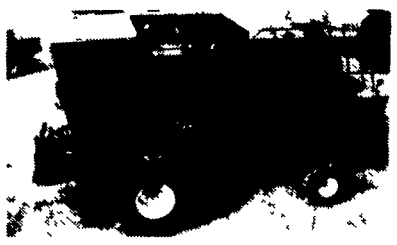


1984 IH 1480, 1539 Hrs., Diesel, Turbo, Hydro. Trans., Cab With A/C, Heat, Radio, w/Straw Chopper (U5104)



IH 1440, 2760 Hrs., 28Lx26, 11.00x16 Tires, Auto Header Control, AC/Htr (U4817)

2nd LAW OF HOOBER RECONDITIONED AXIAL-FLOW COMBINES

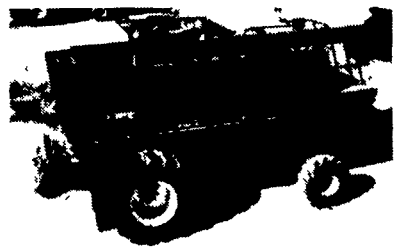


IH 1440 Diesel, Hydro, 6 Cyl., 28Lx26 Tires, Dickey-John Monitors (U5479)

3,500 HOURS PLUS (+) HOOBER RECONDITIONING EQUALS (=) YEARS OF DEPENDABLE SERVICE

3,500 hours on a conventional combine usually means too much trouble to be dependable. Axial-Flow Combines with 3,500 hours reconditioned by Hoober's have proven to run for years when bought by farmers in Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, New Jersey and New York.

3rd LAW OF HOOBER RECONDITIONED AXIAL-FLOW COMBINES



IH 1460, 1979 Model, Grain-Loss Monitor, 30.5x32 And 18.4x16.1 Tires (U4744)

A CASE-IH AXIAL-FLOW COMBINE SERVICED BY EXPERT HOOBER COMBINE MECHANICS EQUALS (=) LITTLE OR NO DOWN TIME DURING HARVEST.

When Hoober's expert combine mechanics service Axial-Flow Combines in the off-season, they run trouble-free through the season.

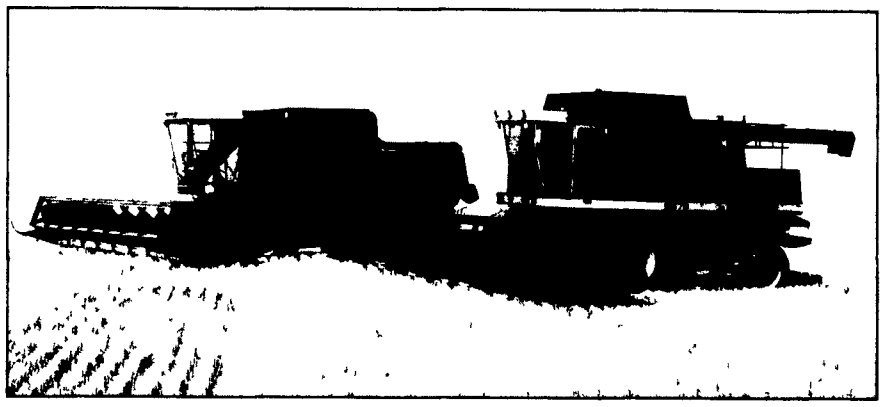
Rotary or Conventional Combines

Where can you get straight answers?



"Ask the company that offers both."

Like a lot of combine customers Ron had a frustrating time getting at the facts about rotary versus conventional combines

Ronald Bronski

Go to a dealer that sells only conventional combines," reports Bronski "and they'll run down the rotaries. Go to rotary only dealers and they laugh at the conventionals. Who can you believe?

That's when my wife Molly gave me some real good advice. Ask somebody who sells both, she said.

Well, the only company in North America that sells both is Massey Ferguson. So I went to them. And, boy, am I glad I did.

Manufacturer's estimated engine horsepower

First off, the M F dealer gave me real solid advice. Like where rotaries work best, and where conventionals shine.

Then he gave me the facts on both lines of M F combines — the M F 8400 conventionals and the M F 8570 rotary. I'll have to admit, I was impressed.

I had thought all rotaries were about the same. I had no idea that the M F rotary has so many exclusive features, like the front feed beater and the direct discharge rotor design that makes it more reliable and more efficient.

Then the dealer showed me the M F conventionals. They are really well built. But what impressed me the most were reports of his customers getting 20-50% better fuel economy, as low as 0.5 gallons per acre.

So which one did I buy? One of each! You see, I raise several different crops, so I can make a case for both. Besides, my son Mark will pay for the second one doing custom work for the neighbors.

TORQUE AMPLIFIERS & CLUTCHES

★ New Wider Heavy Duty Super Sprag 1-1/32" Wide
★ 5 Yr. Warranty Against Sprag Failure
★ Introductory Price $695.00

We are pleased to announce a major improvement in TA strength & performance backed up by a warranty that is unmatched in the industry The 5/8" width Dana sprag which we have used over the past 10 years has proven its ability to perform under the most adverse of conditions and has achieved results that have sent our competitors scrambling to keep up By increasing the width of the sprag to 1-1/32" and caging it in a heavier frame, we now have an unmatched shock load capacity and dramatically raised our load carrying ability Our studies have shown that 90% of TA problems are directly related to sprag failure We feel that we now have the strongest sprag & best rebuilt TA available and it will be warranted as follows·

2 yr. - 100% parts & labor on remainder of unit
Our standard heavy duty TA is still available at $645 00 and carries a *2 yr - 100% parts & labor warranty
Certain restrictions apply and there will be a maximum labor pay-out of $450.00.
We also have units & parts available to rebuild old style TA's, including ramp & carrier sets
NEW price on ramps & carries - $200 00

PLY-FOIL BENEFITS

PLY-FOIL products are clean, lightweight, and non-toxic; are unaffected by changes in humidity; do not shrink; and once installed require no maintenance. They do not promote the growth of fungi or bacteria, and provide no nesting support for rodent or insect pests. PLY-FOIL, which has a Class A/Class 1 fire rating, meets the fire and smoke safety requirements of most federal, state and local building codes.

"We have over 1/3 first calf heifers in the milking herd. When I wormed with Master Mix Ruma Worm, I saw a big improvement in milk production & body conditioning in those heifers. I think regular deworming makes a big difference, especially in a young herd."

Altered Champions Cheat Everyone

Recently I read a newspaper artucle and an editorial about a 4-H livestock exhibitor who altered an animal that eventually won grand champion at a state fair. Why does this incident spark such controversy?

Over the years I've heard of instances in which animals were altered to gain an advantage in the show ring. Why? Champions bring big money at an auction. If altering a project animal enables a youngster to capture the championship, what's the harm?

4-H and, for that matter, all junior livestock shows should be the epitome of fair play. The only advantage anyone should have over another entrant should be the direct result of how much time the exhibitor spends training, feeding, and exercising the project animal.

I know of cases in which animals have been altered surgically to give them the advantage in a junior show. One animal actually was subjected to a surgical procedure to remove excess fatty tissue from the neck and shoulder regions of the body, resulting in a cleaner front for the animal. What the junior exhibitor learned is that it's OK to do anything and everything to win.

Given current animal rights the industry can't afford to have happen. Anyone who stoops to such low levels of show-ring ethics is saying that the animal doesn't matter. Winning matters. Is this what we want to teach our junior exhibitors?

Another incident I'm aware of was the dyeing of a white steer's haircoat to make it appear black. The exhibitor knew that the judge was partial to black steers and felt the only chance to win was to dye the steer black. It worked, too. But once again the wrong message was sent to junior exhibitors: All's fair if it results in a win.

These altered champions are not limited to cattle. Some of the more blatant abuses of show-ring ethics involve swine, sheep, and cattle. This is confirmed by the apparent influx of crossbred animals in purebred classes. It happens that many of the animals exhibited as registered purebreds come from mixed ancestry. I can't tell you how many spotted white breed hogs I've seen in the past several years, or how many erect-eared breeds with floppy ears. Off-color and off-types are so prevalent that it's almost impossible to determine which animals are purebred.

The situation is so bad that an honest breeder is hard-pressed to In fact, I heard a leader of one of the breed associations in the sheep industry say they knew crossbreeding was going on and that they accepted this as a way of breed improvement! Needless to say, this has come back to haunt that particular breed; the result has been the incorporation of bad genes and a watering-down of positive traits.

I know of a few purebred swine breeders who make it a habit to inbreed some of their newer boars to see if any off-types show up! These breeders are trying to assure their buyers that no genetic surprises will show up in the next generation.

As an industry, where are we exhibitors that cheating is OK? Do registration papers mean anything anymore? How can we encourage honesty at the junior level if it is not fundamental to the adult level of competition?

Most cattle, sheep, and swine exhibitors are honest and ethical, and it's up to us to make sure we are sending the right message to our youth. As an industry, we cannot and will not tolerate cheaters. No championship is worth giving up self-respect.

People who bend the rules ultimately lose out. Fair play has been and always will be the primary objective of junior livestock programs. It has to be.

INCREASE YOUR NET INCOME FROM LAYERS

Handle 30 birds at random in any large cage layer house and examine them. You quickly learn what they need, what they want, and what they have to have to reach maximum production efficiency.

It is a simple task to learn to handle individual layers to diagnose their physical problems and their needs.

Look for the following and the diagnosis will follow:

• The molting of two or more large primary wing feathers from one or both wings means the hen is laying 10 to 20 percent below normal and that she may be laying too many thin-shelled eggs.

• The eyes are not bright and clean and have droopy or elongated eye lids. This symptom may mean that toxic gas is coming from old, wet manure.

• If the face and beak show a yellowish color, it means that the hen is reabsorbing yolk pigments as her yolk sacs degenerate, and that she is going out of egg production.

• White or yellow lesions inside the mouth means that there may be vitamin A deficiency due to capillaria worms or that mycotoxin poisoning may be indicated.

• A sweet breath means the layer is healthy; a sour breath can mean the the bird has been drinking dirty or polluted water. Obnoxious breath with a bowel odor is a symptom of an intestinal upset, a sign that feeders should be cleaned out and only fresh, high quality feed be fed to birds. Some producers find that a vitamin-mineral-electrolyte (VME) supplement may also help. If the VME is fed through the water proportioner, make sure that the proportioner is calibrated. Clean the proportioner after feeding, and feed VME at ½ strength only three days a week.

• Drainage from the nostrils, mouth, or eyes suggests a respiratory infection. Take these birds to the lab.

• Pinch the abdominal flesh lightly between the fingers. If the fat under the skin holds the fingers apart one inch or more, then the layer is too fat and must be placed on a weight reduction program under the care of a nutritionist. An obese abdomen with hard fat will prevent egg production.

• A fleshy protuberance on the beak can mean dirty or poor beak trimming. Beak trimming is a type of surgery and must be done with precision and cleanliness. Some flocks may have a third of the birds with beaks improperly trimmed.

• Light- or dark-colored combs can mean one of several diseases or disorders. Take four fresh dead birds with these symptoms to the laboratory immediately.

• Liquid or urates draining out of the vent all over the abdominal feathers means a picked vent ring, cannibalism, a kidney disorder, digestive upsets, or mycosis.

• Lice can be seen on feather shafts as light brown insects with six legs about the size of a dash (-), while mites are darker or black insects found below the vent feathers and are half the size of a period (.). Treat external parasites by culling, sanitation, isolation, and pesticides that are legal and safe.

• A bird with a vent that is smaller than a nickel, and is dry, yellow, and inactive, is going out of production.

To summarize, we suggest handling 30 individual birds in any large flock at random to learn what the flock is really like. Look at every bird every day and handle 30 once a week. This will give you ways to improve the environment, nutrition, health, behavior, and net income of the flock.

Farmers: Petition For ASC Nominees

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — Farmers are reminded that the county Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) office is receiving nominations for ASCS Community Commitee election candidates. Donald E. Lutz, chairman of the Berks County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, encouraged farmers to use this opportunity to nominate their farm neighbors as candidates in the ASC committee election.

He said the ASC committee provides the important service of administering government farm programs in the local community. The election will be conducted by mail from November 23 to December 3. Eligible farm voters will be provided with instructions for filling out the secret ballot and returning it to the county ASC office.

Most resident farmers are eligible to hold office as ASC committee members. If a farmer would like detailed information concerning eligibility requirements, he or she should contact either a present committee member or the county ASCS office.

Farmers Should Report Completed ACP Practice

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — Donald E. Lutz, chairman of the Berks County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, said farmers should report completed Agricultural Conservation Program (ACP) practices as soon as possible so that payments may be issued promptly.

"Farmers with long-term agreements (LTA) should complete the 1990 portion of the LTA by the practice expiration date," Lutz said.

In addition to annual agreements, the ACP authorizes long-term agreement funding for producers who have an area needing conservation work that requires from 3 to 10 years to complete. "These agreements can either be targeted to a specific problem area that covers part of the farm (LTA of 3-5 years), or covers the whole farm (LTA 3 to 10 years)," Lutz said.

He said funding is also available for pooling agreements. "If two or more farmers have a common conservation problem, they could consider solving it by pooling their resources, efforts, and finances."

At the end of September, the Berks County ASCS office had approved 122 requests for cost-share assistance under the ACP. The conservation practices are treating critical soil, water, and environmental problems on 1,600 acres of farmland in the county.

"Producers who desire cost-share assistance to correct severe conservation problems may sign up for the ACP at any time," Lutz said. The program authorizes up to $10,000 per person per fiscal year under a pooling agreement, up to $3,500 per person per fiscal year under the annual agreements, and up to $3,500 per person times the number of years of a long-term agreement.

ACP participants who cannot complete an approved practice by the expiration date on their contract should notify the local ASCS office.

New Cab Fits M-F 300 Tractors

LEOLA (Lancaster Co.)— "Massey-Ferguson is continuing its commitment to operator comfort, convenience, and safety with the new HiLine cab for its popular 60 to 90 horsepower M-F 300 Series tractors," said Ervin Weaver of M M Weaver & Sons.

The new HiLine two-door cab offers the convenience and safety of either right or left hand entry, and the flat floor makes it easy to move about.

"Improvements in the new cab include a new fresh-air ventilation system, air conditioning system, and a new roof design that gives easy access to the fresh-air filter," said Weaver.

The unique fresh air ventilation system includes a filtered air blower with adjustable vents mounted in the roof. By integrating this with a warm air system located in the lower portion of the cab, warm air can be directed to the feet while a refreshing stream of cool air is directed to the head and upper body.

Other improvements include over-the-rear-tire fenders three inches wide with five-inch-long extensions to prevent mud and water from being thrown onto the rear of the cab; angled steps with anti-slip edges for easier and safer entry into the cable; two rear work lights, adjustable for vertical and lateral positioning; two fully adjustable front work lights to handle any work situation; and a restyled console that offers a neat appearance and excellent forward visibility.

The HiLine cab is available for the following Massey-Ferguson tractors: M-F 375 (60 hp), M-F 390 (70 hp), M-F 390T (80 hp), M-F 398 (80 hp), and M-F 399 (90 hp).

Massey-Ferguson's M-F 300 Series tractors are now available with an air-conditioned HiLine cab.

Policy Makes Farmers 'Losers'

AMES, Iowa — "In the 1990 Farm Bill, Congress chose to support the low price policies advocated by Secretary Yeutter as a bargaining tool in the GATT negotiations, and American farmers and ranchers are the losers," said National Farmers Organization (NFO) President DeVon R. Woodland. "We find that unacceptable and we will not support it."

Woodland went on to say that indications are that the expensive negotiating efforts of the Administration to bend the will of the EEC and other countries in the GATT will not succeed and that Congress, when they understand the consequences of their actions, will have to reconsider the farm program after the GATT negotiations are concluded.

"Furthermore, these low price policies are being implemented against the advice of the Congressional Budget Office, who warned the Congress back in April that real net farm income would decline by 29 percent in the early 1990s if those policies continued. That same paper anticipates that over 500,000 farm families would be pushed out of farming by 1995, if we stayed on the present course. That is a loss we simply cannot tolerate."

Woodland said that NFO members are very disappointed in the complicated and confusing provisions designed for grain, particularly soybeans and milk. He said producers will be forced to accept lower net income without attempting any corresponding benefits for consumers.

ADADC Promotes Milk In Area Schools

SYRACUSE, N.Y.- The American Dairy Association and Dairy Council's (ADADC) fall promotion is now in junior and senior high schools throughout New York, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania. Materials promoting milk will be displayed in school cafeterias throughout the school year.

Focusing on the nutritional benefits of chocolate milk, the promotion coordinates with the National Dairy Board's recent campaign, "Milk. It Does A Body Good." Posters developed for placement in cafeterias depict a young teenager holding a glass of milk and seeing the reflection of a full-grown adult looking back at them. There are both female and male versions of the posters.

The promotional materials are being complemented with a nutrition education component directed at school leaders. Nutrition education specialists from ADADC are conducting nutrition programs for teachers and school food service workers to coincide with the promotion. Smart Moves, the nationally developed nutrition program for junior high school students, will be tied in to this fall promotion.

Through their teachers, students will learn the nutritional benefits of chocolate milk versus other beverages on a colorful poster which will be placed in cafeterias. Easy to read and understand calendar grids with the monthly cafeteria menu and nutrition information will be provided for students to take home. Food service workers will receive eye-pleasing posters for their work areas explaining outlining storage and handling techniques for dairy products.

Attorney General Challenges Anti-Meat Ad

CHICAGO, Ill. — The office of the Illinois Attorney General, Neil F. Hartigan, has told the Humane Farming Association (HFA) of San Francisco, California, in a letter issued yesterday, that HFA "must cease making misrepresentations of fact in solicitations made in Illinois."

The letter also states, "the organization is not allowed to solicit or obtain donations from Illinois citizens until it registers and accounts for its conduct and funds collected to date."

Working through Meat Board Ad Watch, a program which challenges deceptive advertising, the National Live Stock and Meat Board questioned HFA ads in a complaint filed in early May. Illinois Beef Council, Illinois Pork Producers Association, and the American Veal Association were co-petitioners in the effort. In addition, the Illinois Farm Bureau and Illinois Milk Producers Association wrote letters of support.

According to Meat Board chairman, Lean Locke, a Texas beef producer, HFA is an animal rights activist group which has repeatedly represented in "Time", "Newsweek" and other national publications that veal produced by the milk-fed method is toxic to human health. Locke says, "This simply is not true."

The Attorney General's Office requested that HFA substantiate its claims and register as a charitable organization. That was nearly four months ago.

The October 15 letter states: "We consider your failure to register and account to constitute a violation of the Illinois Charitable Solicitation Act ... and we have no choice given your lack of response but to conclude that the claims of false advertisement made by the National Live Stock and Meat Board against your organization are valid." The letter continues: "A charity which makes representations and solicits funds from the public has a duty to make truthful representations in its solicitations."

The Attorney General's initiative could have broad implications for responsible discussion of issues of public concern.

"Commercial speakers such as food manufacturers have always had to substantiate their advertising claims," said Donna Schmidt, director of Meat Board Ad Watch. "Now those who wish to gain public support for their positions will have to give similar attention to accuracy, at least when they seek tax-deductible contributions."

The Attorney General's Office says if HFA fails to comply, it will take legal action against the organization as appropriate.

"Yesterday's action by Attorney General Neil Hartigan is a victory for consumers and farmers alike," said Locke. "Advocacy groups are good for America. But no one is served by false statements of fact."

In The Lamb Industry, Frustration Mounts

WASHINGTON, D.C. — "If farm-gate prices for lamb continue at these depressed levels, thousands of sheep producers will be forced out of business," says Wyoming rancher and American Sheep Industry Association Vice President Jim Magagna in testimony in Washington, D.C.

Magagna testified before the House Government Operations Subcommittee on Government Information, Justice and Agriculture, adding to testimony from livestock and farm organizations about the impact of concentration and integration in the livestock industry.

The hearing was held at the request of Congressman Craig Thomas (R-WY) in response to expresions of concern by Wyoming livestock producers. Thomas sits on the Government Operations Committee.

Several members of Congress called for more detailed and reliable information about the effects that packer concentration is having on both producers and consumers. Congressman Dan Glickman (D-KS) said a viable economic analysis is needed to evaluate the current market situation.

"In the lamb industry, we've become increasingly frustrated with the lamb marketing system as retail prices continue to climb while wholesale and live prices plummet," Magagna said.

He called on the comittee to focus on market structure and price discovery.

"Since 1975, 23 lamb slaughter facilities have closed with a resulted loss of over 5 million head slaughter capacity," he said. Since 1984, the four largest packers' market share has gone from 42 percent of the national federally-inspected lamb slaughter to 77 percent in 1988, he added. "Today, there are only eight major lamb slaughter companies."

Magagna said concentration has also increased significantly in the breaking segment of the industry with only five major companies left in the U.S. today.

He cited figures from the Department of Justice which showed the lamb industry highly concentrated. "Yet we have seen no action by them to investigate the impact of this concentration on the production segment of the lamb industry," Magagna said. He challenged the Justice Department's focus on consumer benefit without consideration to the production segment of the industry.

Magagna also stressed the uniqueness of the lamb industry, and the need to avoid generalizations resulting from beef-industry market studies. He urged a study to include an analysis of all market segments from producers through retailers.

"Paramount to the health of any industry is the proper operation of its price discovery system," Magagna said, critizing the current system for failing to provide the industry with information needed to adjust to consumer price signals. He said a key factor may be price reporting of wholesale lamb prices, which are reported from the New York city jobber market despite a shift in the industry to cutting carcasses into primal cuts at the point of slaughter.

"The net effect of changes in the methods of meat merchandising and distribution has resulted in the bulk of lamb being distributed in other than carlot loads," he said. "Yet the wholesale price is still being set by the New York carlot carcass trade. Our wholesale lamb prices are being established by a small portion of the total volume of lamb sold nationwide."

He called for market information relfecting the quality and conditions of sale.

Magagna also gave testimony on behalf of the Wyoming Wool Growers Association, American Pork Producers Council, Powder River Basin Resource Council, Wyoming Stockgrowers Association, and Wyoming Farm Bureau.

Saul High Students Prepare For Farm Show

PHILADELPHIA — This year 24 students from W.B. Saul High School of Agricultural Sciences in Philadelphia are working to prepare their livestock for exhibit at the Pennsylvania Farm Show.

Agriculture instructor James Tatro said that more Saul students are involved in the Farm Show than ever before. This year, 11 students are raising market hogs for the show. Saul students will also be showing market lambs for the first time this year, thanks to the efforts of instructor John Porior.

This year, students are working closely with Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Grumbine and sons Darryl and Darren of Myerstown, Pa., breeders of the students' market hogs.

Students also utilize this hands-on approach to understand what is really involved in the production of animals for market. Skills developed include livestock selection, nutrition, veterinary skills, calculation of gain per day and cost per pound of gain, as well as fitting and showing techniques and marketing skills.

Unlike many rural students who raise their animals on the home farms, Saul students travel by city bus to attend school and care for their animals on the school farm, located on 90 acres in the northwest section of the city.

Wool Act Gets Approval

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Agriculture conferees put the stamp of approval on the National Wool Act with the completion of committee work on the 1990 Farm Bill.

The move culminated 18 months of work by the sheep industry to encourage passage of this important legislation, said Pierce Miller, a Texas sheepman and chairman of the American Sheep Industry Association's Legislative Action Council.

"I feel like we have an excellent package," Miller said, explaining that the industry avoided a freeze on the incentive payment formula. "The removal of that freeze will provide an additional $60 million to the industry over the next five years," he said. "Wool is the only commodity that came out of the Farm Bill negotiations with a guaranteed escalator. In addition, wool and mohair are not under an overall cap of $250,000 that limits producers and those who produce several program crops."

The final language includes payment limitations similar to all other commodities under government programs. Wool payments will fall under limitations of $200,000 in the 1991 marketing year, $175,000 in 1992, $150,000 in 1993, and $125,000 in 1994 and 1995. Producers will see the difference in payments the year following the designated marketing year.

Under an across-the-board deficit-reduction move, each incentive recipient will join other commodities in taking a one percent assessment on their payments.

"Our victory in passage of this bill out of the conference committee is due in large part to the many producers, state organizations and friends in Congress, coast to coast, who have put their time and energy into this effort," Miller said.

Feed TMR Fast

with a Stationary Mixer and a Weaverline Cart

Tom: "About a year ago you switched to Total Mixed Ration. What do you think of TMR by this time?"

Ted: "Well, I think it helps in 3 ways: First, it helps increase production. Second, it reduces feed costs. Third, we have better herd health."

Tom: "I see you have a stationary mixer and then use a Weaverline cart to feed the cows. Wouldn't you rather have a mixing cart?"

Ted: "No, not for our situation. We have a conveyor bringing the haylage, corn silage, and high moisture corn into the stationary mixer. We mix 2 cart loads of one blend before feeding time. At feeding time, as soon as we have the second cart load out, we fill the mixer with the second blend, which mixes while we feed the next cart load. By that time the third cart load is ready to feed."

"We find a stationary mixer and a Weaverline cart are a very good and fast way to feed TMR in a tie stall barn."

Conservationists Participate In Conference

CHAMBERSBURG (Franklin Co.) — The 43rd joint annual conference of the Pennsylvania Association of Conservation Districts (PACD) and the State Conservation Commission was held October 8-10 in Carlisle.

Those attending from the Franklin County Conservation District were directors Andrew Fitz and Wilbur Kline, District Manager Ernest Tarner, District Secretary Donna Hays, and Bay Technician David Stoner.

More than 200 people representing local conservation districts, state, and national governmental agencies and agricultural organizations participated in workshop focusing on the theme "New Dawn — the 90's."

Keynoting the Commission luncheon was Secretary Arthur A. Davis of the Department of Environmental Resources (DER) who spoke about the "Directions for the 90's," an action plan for Pennsylvania conservation districts and the Soil Conservation Commission. "The presence of local conservation districts in the community is very important," said Davis. "The districts are in the right place to provide information and services and are superbly equipped to handle local conservation matters."

Davis also announced that funds totaling $700,000 have been approved to support technical and education services provided by conservation districts. The allotment comes from various sources, including the Clean Water Fund, the Pennsylvania Energy Office, and Section 319 of the Non-Point Source Pollution Management Plan.

In other events, the Pennsylvania Conservation Partnership was launched and the magazine "Pennsylvania Resources" was unveiled. The Pennsylvania Conservation Partnership is a new educational program under PACD designed to provide funding to local districts through memberships. In addition, members receive a copy of the "Pennsylvania Resources" magazine on a quarterly basis.

The association also conducted elections of officers for the term of 1990-92. Melvin S. Worley was elected as president of PACD by state association members.

Along with Worley, other PACD officers elected to a first term include Robert Wagner (Lancaster County), first vice president; James Bear (Cumberland County), second vice president; Bernard Hoffnar (Bedford County), treasurer; and Anne Bates (Delaware County), Secretary. Walter R. Rossman of Cambria County was reappointed as Pennsylvania representative to the National Association of Conservation Districts council.

Time To Review Insurance Coverage

EDWARD J. WOODS
County Agricultural Agent

For the past several decades, the value of farm buildings and personal property have been on the increase. In order to cope with this situation, we have frequently suggested that property owners adjust their insurance coverage so that replacement cost will be covered, rather than original cost.

The same situation holds true with personal property as well as buildings. We are aware that some loses in the past have not been sufficiently covered with insurance and the farmer was the loser.

Unless the insurance program has been adjusted in the past few years, we suggest that your insurance agent be contacted for guidance.

Winterize Small Engines

Many small engines on farms and around houses will be hard to start next spring. But you can change that by properly winterizing your small engines. Here are some suggestions.

- After running the engine to reach operating temperature, drain the crankcase and refill with new oil of proper weight, as specified in the operator's manual.
- Add a few teaspoons of gasoline stabilizer into the gas tank and run the engine for several minutes to make sure additive flows throughout the fuel system.
- If the engine is water cooled, be sure the anti freeze in the cooling system is sufficient for the lowest temperature.
- Remove the spark plug and pour a tablespoon of clean oil into the cylinder. Also clean and regap the spark plug or replace with a new one.
- Use an air gun to blow loose dirt and chaff from the engine. Remove and service the air cleaner.
- Finally, cover the engine with a piece of canvas and store in a dry place under cover.

Fertilize Alfalfa

The fall of the year, after the removal of the last cutting, is a good time to topdress existing alfalfa stands. The application of a phosphorus-potash fertilizer (according to a soil test) in the fall will strengthen the alfalfa roots and result in higher yields next summer.

Nitrogen should not be needed on established alfalfa stands because alfalfa is a legume and produces its own nitrogen. Some growers topdress with fertilizer in the fall and again after the removal of the first cutting in the spring.

This should result in maximum yields with a healthy stand. When alfalfa plants are well fed and treated for insect injury, they should be able to stand weather adviserities. Alfalfa plants are heavy feeders on both phosphorus and potash. Unless these elements are replaced each year, the plants and yield will suffer.

We've got service all around this section of the country, and I have a fellow just jumping to do your job mighty fast.

And that ain't all, our prices are right reasonable, and if you're a tightwad we'll let you do the job yourself if you've got over 500 square feet. It can save you right smart a money.

So call me on my nickel at 800-692-0123. If I'm not by the phone, some real live person will take your number, and I'll try to get back to you real soon. Usually somebody is awake in this outfit, so you just call any time day or night. But, please mind the Lord, and don't call on Sunday.

Just one more thing. We fellows make our living doing this kind of work, and we've got children to feed and bills. That's our side of it, but you've got such things too. A lot of people tell us that this Scabbling saves a whole lot more than it costs. So go ahead and do it. It'll put shoes on everybody's feet.

Be looking to hear from you folks right soon.

Bruce Wilhelm, Avondale, restored this 1936 John Deere BO. The tractor appears on the April page of the 1991 Classic Farm Tractors Calendar by Du Pont, maker of Classic® soybean herbicide. These specialty models were built to hug the ground. Even the driver's seat is mounted at a different angle to lower the operator and miss tree branches. Bruce sprayed on Du Pont Imron paint for the gleaming green and yellow finish because he said, "It's the best paint out there. It always has that wet look about it."

Calendar Looks At Restored Tractors

WILMINGTON, Del.— Classic tractor owner Bruce Wilhelm, Avondale, has gained national recognition for recovering a 1936 John Deere BO. His brilliant green and yellow machine appears on the April page of the 1991 Classic Farm Tractors Calendar by Du Pont, maker of Classic® soybean herbicide and other crop production products.

"The 'O' means orchard for this early specialty Model B," said Bruce. "See how it's designed to be low and compact to reduce any damage to the trees. The air intake, fuel, and water caps are all shielded, the fenders are streamlined, and the muffler can lay horizontally along the engine."

Bruce bought the John Deere at an auction in Pennsylvania in 1984 and then completely disassembled it for a meticulous restoration over the next four years. He finished it off with Du Pont Imron® paint, which he says is "the best paint out there. It always has that wet look about it."

The BO was built from September, 1935, until June, 1938. Extensive shielding on later models gave them a futuristic, almost space-age look. Of course, the two-cylinder engine starts on gas and runs on kerosene to develop 18.5 hp on the belt and 16.25 hp at the drawbar. It's backed up with a four-speed transmission that offers 3 mph in reverse, but only 6¼ mph in top gear.

Bruce is an avid collector, especially of John Deere tractors. He and his wife Carolyn host an antique tractor, car, and engine show each June. In addition, they plan to exhibit next year from Conowingo and Elkton, MD, to Kennett Square and Kinzers, to Milford and Hockessin, DE.

"This 1991 edition is the second Classic Calendar we've produced," said John Harvey, Du Pont communication manager. "The hardest part was selecting only 14 tractors from the hundreds submitted of beautifully done restorations. The easy part will be sending out calendars for Christmas gifts."

The calendar, a companion full-color poster and a videotape, are all available for purchase from Du Pont by calling toll-free: (800) 527-2601. Or, write to Classic Tractors, P.O. Box 1755, Wilmington, DE 19899.

Farm-Stored Grain Removal Requires ASCS Approval

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — "Producers with Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC) price support loans must obtain authorization from our office before commingling, rotating, moving, or selling loan grain," said Donald E. Lutz, chairman of the Berks County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS).

He said penalties will be imposed when loan grain is removed or disposed of before repayment authorization is obtained from the county ASCS office. "If the grain is to be used for feed, the county committee may require payment of the loan before the grain is removed from the storage bin."

The CCC price support loan program authorizes loans to farmers who hold their grain off the market to benefit from future price increases. The grain under loan must be stored in an approved facility on a farm or in a commercial warehouse. Lutz said approximatly 11,565 bushels of 1989 crop grain under loan are stored on farms.

The ASCS official said unauthorized removal of reserve grain or grain under regular loan may result in the immediate repayment of the loan, plus interest; early redemption charges, if applicable; and storage payments. Additionally, ASCS could deny future farm-stored loans and request an investigation by the Office of the Inspector General.

Livestock Notes

Getting A Grip On Strangles

Strangles, a distemper, or barn fever are all terms for a disease in horses caused by the bacteria, Streptococcus equi. The disease is characterized by an inflammation of the upper respiratory tract and a swelling of associated lymph nodes that often abscess and rupture. It is one of the most contagious diseases in the horse and can rapidly spread throughout a breeding farm, show, racetrack, or anywhere a troup of transient horses gather.

The disease has an incubation period (time of contraction to onset of illness) from 3 to 6 days. The initial signs include a cough, runny nose, depression, fever, and no appetite due to the fever and/or a sore throat.

Over the next few days, the lymph nodes, particularly those between the lower jaw, will become swollen and painful. Fever may reach 106°F and swelling of the pharynx and larynx may become so severe that the horse may stand with his head and neck extended and make a rattling or coughing sound while breathing, hence the name strangles. Occasionally, a tracheostomy tube may need to be inserted in order to provide an adequate airway. The runny nose will turn to thick, purulent discharge (pus), indicating rupture of some internal abscesses.

Unless complications arise, most cases do not last beyond two weeks and abscesses drain and heal within 3 to 6 weeks. However, some infections may not remain localized and may spread throughout the horse's body, a condition known as "bastard strangles." This is a much more severe condition in which vital organs such as the brain, heart, liver, spleen, kidneys, lungs, and even joints and muscles can be affected. Abscesses in these areas are more difficult to treat and can cause irreparable damage, as well as death. Needless to say, of the 2 percent mortality rate this disease causes, most are due to bastard strangles.

The strangles organism is highly contagious because it is very hardy and is spread through nasal discharge and even by coughing or sneezing. It is felt by some that the organism, under proper conditions, can live almost indefinitely. Therefore, feed, water, pasture, fences or anything else an infected horse contacts may remain contaiminated long after the sick horse has been removed. Coughing and sneezing can allow the bacteria to become airborne, which means horses in surrounding pastures can contract the disease as well.

Like other contagious diseases, treatment starts with isolation of affected horses. A turnout area or one area of the barn as far away from other horses as possible should be designated as the "sick space." Rigid control and disinfectant measures should be used to prevent transmission to non-infected horses or areas. Afflicted horses should be kept warm and dry.

Warm mashes (feed soaked with warm water) will help those with a sore throat eat easier, and hot compresses will help external abscesses draw to a head so they can be lanced and allowed to drain. In some cases, extensive penicillin therapy and even vaccination may be recommended by the attending veterinarian. Today's vaccines can stimulate a high antibody response within 72 hours of treatment that may lessen the severity of the infection. Although Streptococcus equi is very sensitive to penicillin, inadequate therapy will often give only temporary relief, and some practitioners believe this may cause the infection to spread generally, creating a dreaded case of bastard strangles.

Current vaccines (Strepvax, Stranglevac, Strepguard, etc.) are more effective and safer than the bacterins (killed bacteria) initially developed. Most require two injections, 3 to 4 weeks apart followed by an annual booster. Although they are not 100 percent effective, they will go a long way toward reducing both the incidence and severity of strangles. Although foals obtain a certain amount of strangles antibodies through the colostrum if their mothers have had the disease or have been vaccinated, they should be vaccinated as well. In addition, it is always a good management practice to isolate and monitor new horses for a week to 10 days before allowing them to come in contact with others on the farm.

Controlling and treating a contagious disease is one of the most disruptive, expensive, and time consuming events that can occur on a farm. The time and expense associated with routine preventive measures can go a long way toward keeping your facilities and, most importantly, your horses free of this disease. Consult with your veterinarian to determine a preventive program that best suits your needs.

Equine Careers Brochure

The American Horse Council (AHC) in conjunction with the American Youth Horse Council (AYHC) has recently published an "Educational Opportunities In The Horse Industry" brochure. This is the first time in many years that such a listing of careers and opportunity resources has been updated and published on a national level.

The list also includes a list of equine veterinary schools, equine professional organizations, intercollegiate associations, references for educational equine programs, and U.S. Department of Agriculture contacts.

For a complimentary copy of the brochure, call or write to the AHC office, 1700 K Street, NW, Suite 300, Washington, DC 20006, (202) 296-4031.

Minerals For The Breeding Herd

Producers should consider providing a high posphorus mineral mix to the cow herd during the breeding season.

The role of phosphorus on reproductive performance is well documented. A free-choice mineral mixture containing 33 percent trace mineral salt and 67 percent dicalcium phosphate is recommended during the breeding season.

This would provide approximately 18 percent calcium and 13 percent phosphorus. Before and after breeding, a mix of 50 percent trace mineral salt and 50 percent dicalcium phosphate would be adequate (13.5 percent CA, 9.5 percent P).

Attention to these few management tips will help to ensure a productive, healthy, and profitable beef cow enterprise.

Tips On Grafting Lambs

Sometime during the lambing season, most shepherds will encounter a lamb in need of a foster mother.

These situations may result from several circumstances including a dead ewe, mastitis, triplets, refusal of the ewe to except her lamb, or simply not producing enough milk.

Grafting lambs to other ewes is recommended when these situations occur. The chance of success is better when grafting is done immediately after the lamb is born. Here are some ideas.

- Stanchion: Place the ewe's head and neck in a stanchion which allows her to eat and drink and allows the lambs to nurse. This prevents the ewe from allowing only her own to suckle. Usually in 3-5 days, the ewe can be removed from the stanchion, and if successful she will accept the lamb(s). The theory behind this is after a few days the grafted lamb is indistinguishable from her own lamb because it has been laying in the ewe's manure, urine, etc. This method is more practical with older lambs (4 to 5 days of age). There are some commercial stanchions available. Check your sheep magazines for advertisers.
- Slime Graft: Thoroughly rub fetal fluids and membranes, from the ewe that the lamb is to be grafted onto, over the lamb to be grafted. The ewe will clean up the foster lamb, believing its her own.
- Salt Graft: Immerse the lamb to be grafted as well as the ewe's own lamb in a saturated salt solution. This method attempts to make the ewe's own new-born lamb and the grafted lamb indistinguishable. The ewe becomes so intent on licking the salt from the lambs that she can't tell them apart.
- Lamb Coat: If a newborn lamb dies at birth or shortly thereafter, and the ewe has adequate milk to support another lamb, skin the dead lamb and wrap the skin around the body of the lamb to be grafted. Not recommended during warm weather for obvious reasons.
- Stocking Graft: Place a stocking over a ewe's own lamb for 2-3 days and then remove it, turn it inside out, and place it on the lamb to be grafted.

In some cases, attempts at grafting fail, and rearing these lambs artificially on milk replacer is the only option left. Remember that all baby lambs need colostrum regardless of how they will eventually be reared.

Colostrum is present in ewe's milk only for the first couple of days after lambing. A lamb must have colostrum within four hours after birth to insure full benefit from the antibodies.

- INSURE eliminates most ingredient separation problems.
- INSURE is easier to use.
- INSURE is twice as palatable as other dairy minerals, so palatable, we recommend against feeding it free-choice.
- INSURE is designed for top dress & TMR feeding.
